

Huston, Lyman win school board seats

'Blanks' wins more votes than incumbent Hubbell

By Lisa Boudreau

Voters at Monday's town elections chose two new School Committee members, political newcomer Bill Huston and Mary Lyman. Voters did not return incumbent Dick Hubbell to a second, three-year term.

Mr. Hubbell finished last in the four-way race, behind Larry Lewis and "Blanks."

"Blanks" on the ballots received 61 more votes than Mr. Hubbell.

Only 14 percent of the town's 17,812 registered voters went to the polls Monday.

Board seeks additions to two schools

By Lisa Boudreau

The addition of nine classrooms to South Elementary School and nine to Sanborn Elementary is now the first choice of the School Committee to alleviate crowding in Andover's elementary schools. A parking bylaw amendment that voters will face at April Town Meeting would make it easier for businesses to settle and expand in downtown Andover, according to town planners.

Golden Warrior symbol remains

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover High School's student government voted recently to continue using the Golden Warrior as the school's mascot. The school's 40-plus member House Government, comprised of homeroom representatives and a handful of teachers, voted by a 3 to 1 margin Thursday, March 12, not to change the warrior symbol.

Town may find it difficult to sell land

By Don Staruk

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, told selectmen last week that selling town land may be more difficult than previously thought.

Land taken by the town for non payment of taxes can be sold at auction under the town bylaws, according to the town manager.

"Town meeting vote is necessary to authorize (the sale of) other real property owned by the town," Mr. Stapczynski said.

Selectmen last month asked Mr. Stapczynski to investigate the process of selling town land after residents expressed interest in purchasing certain parcels. Selectmen currently have a policy not to sell town land, but wanted to know what the process was should they want to change that policy.

One resident recently expressed interest in an unbuildable lot on Heather Drive. Another is interested in a piece of land on River Road, while a third resident expressed interest in a 6,700 square-foot property she was interested in on Hillcrest Drive.

In 1989, planners compiled a list of 450 municipally owned properties for Ken Mahony, then town manager, following similar requests. After eliminating parcels protected for conservation or open space, 33 properties ranging from 2,000 square feet to 2.5 acres remained, according to a report compiled by Stephen Colyer, planning director. That number was further reduced to just 12 properties that have "no encumbrances on them," according to Mr. Stapczynski.

Selectman Gerald Silverman asked that the list of lands taken by taxes now be weeded out from the others. If town properties were not taken for non payment of taxes, which Mr. Stapczynski thought would be relatively few, sales would require postings, legal listings and solicitation of sealed bids.

"The method of acquisition determines the method of disposal," Mr. Stapczynski said. "It gets quite complicated."

ZBA refuses to close recycling operation

By Don Staruk

The Zoning Board of Appeals earlier this month denied a petition by Lowell Junction Road residents to revoke a special permit for a concrete and asphalt recycling business to operate in their neighborhood.

Philip and Helen Wormwood, John and Patricia Thomson and Donald and Linda Green, of 11, 13 and 15 Lowell Junction Road respectively, claim the stone and concrete recycling operation at 8 Connector Road goes beyond the storage of gravel, loam and other non-hazardous materials allowed by the special permit.

The business in question is owned and operated by Deloury Construction Co. Inc., of 46 Lowell Junction Road.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Three boards to talk budget tonight at 7:30

A joint meeting of the Board of Selectman, School Committee and Finance Committee will be held Thursday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the School Committee meeting room on the second floor of the school administration building.

The boards will discuss budget issues, including town and school buildings, maintenance and capital improvements.

Rabies clinic set for April 4

The annual Andover rabies clinic will be held Saturday, April 4, at West Middle School from 8:30 a.m. to noon. Andover Animal Hospital personnel will provide rabies vaccinations for $8.

Staff from the town clerk's office will be available to provide 1992 dog licenses. Dog license renewals are available on April 1 each year. The fees are $4 for males, $6 for females and $4 for spayed females. If residents wish to renew licenses on April 4 and their dog's rabies vaccination has not expired, bring a current rabies certificate showing the date of the rabies expiration.

To get a spayed female license for new spayed dogs, residents must provide the spaying certificate as proof for the license.

The 1990 Town Meeting passed an amendment to the Town Bylaw Article XII, Section 11, that requires a $2 administration fee per month for every license renewed after May 1. The town clerk's office encourages residents to renew during the month of April to avoid the administrative fee. To license by mail, send a check for the fee (including 50 cents for postage and handling) made payable to the Town of Andover. Include current rabies and spaying certificates. The town clerk's office will return the license and paperwork after processing.

For further information, call the town clerk's office Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 470-3800.

He's running for county position

John Abenante, a Newburyport resident and chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee, has announced his candidacy for commissioner of Essex County. He will run for one of the two seats that will be available this November.

Mr. Abenante, a self-employed business and computer consultant, is a vice president of the Essex Club, chairman of the Licensing Board of Newburyport and a member of the Board of Water Commissioners for Plum Island, which he also chairs.

A proponent of the regionalization of state government, Mr. Abenante believes restructuring of county government will prove to be a vehicle to bring services to people at a more local level, more efficiently and at less cost than is possible through current methods.

John Abenante

"State government has hit that level economists define as the diseconomy of scale. It is much too large to deliver needed services to its constituents and is much too expensive."

"A role in county government provides a perfect opportunity for me to be part of the solution," he said.

Time to test cholesterol level

The Andover Health Department will hold a cholesterol screening Wednesday, April 8, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The simple fingerstick test for total cholesterol costs $5 and does not require fasting. The program includes dietary counseling by the public health nurse and referral to one's private physician for follow-up care as needed.

An appointment is required. For further information, call the health department at 470-3800, Ext. 255.

Storms diet on snow budget

The two snowfalls in the past week ate up more of Andover's snow budget, but still left it in good shape.

Bob McQuade, Department of Public Works director, hadn't yet gotten the bills for the two latest storms, last Thursday and this past Monday, but said this week that the costs of plowing, sanding and salting the roads was not that great.

"I assume probably about $30,000," Mr. McQuade said.

Last week, before either snowfall, Mr. McQuade said roughly $250,000 remained of the $350,000 snow budget. That would leave roughly $220,000 in the budget now.

Calling all amateur photographers. The Andover Townsman is holding a photography contest. If you take photos because you like to, and don't get paid for them, then this is your contest. Prizes for adult contestants will be $100 for first, $75 for second and $50 for third. There also is a children's category for those 12 and under and there are money prizes for those winners, too. Photos are due April 8 and winners will run in the April 30 issue in a special section, called Photo Contest.

not to revoke the permit and let the decision of the building inspector stand.

The board did, however, request the building inspector make monthly, unannounced visits to the premises to ensure six conditions of the special permit were being met, and that the building inspector keep a written record of his findings for review when Deloury's special permit comes up for renewal in May of 1993.

Other decisions

The Lowell Junction Road neighbors' petition was one of several heard on Thursday, March 5. The petitions were deliberated, and straw votes were taken Saturday, March 7.

Other items included the petition of:

- Gasoline Merchants Inc., of Waltham, for a variance to allow a canopy and signs at the gas station on Route 125 at Salem Street, was only partially approved.

Mike's BP, formerly Mike's Texaco and before that Sy's Texaco, is planning to construct a canopy over the gas pumps.

But because the state right-of-way comes right up close to the pumps, the ZBA gave approval for the canopy only with the condition that written approval be obtained from the state as well.

The owners also wanted to put signs near the road and on the canopy, but the ZBA gave them the choice of one or the other.

The station will go with a free-standing sign by the roadway, according to an employee.

- The Andover Companies, of 195 River Road, was denied a variance to construct two emergency generators less than 100 feet from the side yard setback of the property.

The firm also was denied a petition as a party aggrieved by a decision of the building inspector not to issue a permit for the generators.

The company failed to show hardship, according to board.

- Andover Building and Development Corp., of 39 Argilla Road, was granted a variance to allow continued existence of a front entrance-way at 6 Newman Hill Road, which does not meet setback requirements.

The lot in question is steeply sloped.

- Chic-land Inc., of Cambridge, for a variance to allow nine automatic amusement devices, a jukebox and live entertainment, and as a party aggrieved by the building inspector's decision, denying that use, was not voted.

While the board said the applicant failed to show hardship, the board also decided the machines were allowed as an accessory use, and that the number and type of devices allowed would depend on the license issued by the Board of Selectmen, according to

C. Ryan Buckley.

- Ninh. C. La, of 129C Main St., for a special permit to allow a take-out Chinese restaurant and two tables and four chairs at 40-42 Park St., was granted.

- Herman and Norma Eisenberg, of 10 Lancaster Place, to allow the addition of an in-law apartment, was approved.

- The petition of Douglas and Kathleen Keith, of 62 Juniper Road, for a variance to keep a deck that does not meet setback requirements, was withdrawn.

- Daniel and Susan Ferris, of 242 Chandler Road, for a special permit to allow parking of commercial vehicles in an enclosed structure, was approved.

Mr. Ferris is a contractor and keeps his work vehicles in his garage. The petition was in response to an anonymous complaint, but several neighbors showed up at the hearing in support of Mr. Ferris.

Buying daffodils

Andover will get its first touch of spring March 26-29 when the American Cancer Society sponsors its 10th annual Daffodil Days Festival. Daffodils will be on sale at the Andover/North Andover YMCA, Holy Family and Lawrence General hospitals March 26 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The Methuen Mall will host daffodil sales Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. On Saturday, March 28, volunteers will be selling the golden blossoms outside DeMoulas/Market Basket locations, the post office and area banks.

Police arrest alleged Illegal aliens in Andover

By Don Staruk

Eight men were taken into custody by Immigration and Naturalization Service agents early last Friday morning at 20 Post Office Ave. and charged with being illegal aliens.

The eight are Mexicans who are staying in apartments 4 and 7 at 20 Post Office Ave., according to police and INS officials.

INS officials identified those charged as Heriberto Enciso, 19; Mr. Sanchez-Gallegos, 31; Oswaldo Jimenez, 20; Miguel Garcia-Rojas, 20; Silvestre Munguia-Marin, 20; Afren Barrigan, 38; Jose Galves-Munguia, 19; and a 14-year-old male.

All eight were released without bond and will be given an INS hearing at a later date, according to Timothy Whelan, INS Deputy Director in Boston.

The arrests were the result of an INS investigation started by Andover Police Officer Joseph Ouellette.

Officer Ouellette arrested Francisco Ealvez, 19, of 20 Post Office Ave., on Central Street on March 8 and charged him with operating a car without a license and operating without a registration in his possession. Five other Mexicans in the car at the time of Mr. Ealvez' arrest did not have identification, and Officer Ouellette passed that information along to the INS.

Officer Ouellette and four other Andover officers assisted six INS agents with the arrests on Post Office Avenue at 7:12 a.m. last Friday morning.

All eight Mexicans told police they were employed at Pasta Villagio, the Italian restaurant in Park Street Village, according to Officer Ouellette's report.

Christos Pappadopoulos, owner of Pasta Villagio, said this week that Mr. Ealvez, also known as Francisco Ealvez, Francisco M. Gables and Francisco J. Galves, does work for him, but that the eight charged with being illegal aliens do not.

"He has his papers," Mr. Pappadopoulos said.

The restaurant owner said about four Mexicans work for him.

"The people that work for me have social security cards. They have green cards. They pay taxes and all that," Mr. Pappadopoulos said.

Mr. Pappadopoulos said Mr. Ealvez told him the Mexican friends were staying with him and of Mr. Ealvez' own run in with police. Mr. Pappadopoulos also said the INS had not contacted him about the incident.

Mr. Whelan said his report did not have the information on where the eight alleged illegal aliens were working.

"We're still investigating," Mr. Whelan said.

Mr. Whelan said the suspects could leave the country voluntarily before the INS hearing. If they are found to be illegal aliens at the hearing, they could be deported, he said.

Juveniles caught stealing hood ornaments here

By Don Staruk

Three juveniles were taken into custody Monday afternoon on Railroad Street and charged with taking several hood ornaments off cars in the downtown during the past week.

Two 12-year-olds and a 13-year-old, one boy and two girls, were picked up by police after a report of youths taking hood ornaments off cars in the commuter lot on Railroad Street.

The three allegedly had seven stolen ornaments among them. The three were taken into custody by police as 50-60 other kids watched, according to Patrolman Bob Cronin.

"They had wire cutters with them," Officer Cronin said.

Andover patrolmen nix the latest contract offer

By Don Staruk

The 32-member police patrolmen's union turned down the town's latest contract offer by an 18-12 vote last Friday night, with two members absent.

The crux of the problem with the contract is a section that limits how many officers can be out of work at one time, according to a patrolman who asked not to be identified. "The general feeling of the membership is that the town contract would have radically restricted our vacation time to the point that it would be a hardship on employees and families," said the patrolman. "It isn't money. We understand the town's in a bind and we're more than willing to work with them."

The town wants to restrict the number of officers on vacation at one time to six, which might be acceptable, except that the town wants officers out on long-term disability, 30 days or longer, to be included in that six.

Right now, four patrolmen are out on long-term disability, which means only two patrolmen would be able to go on vacation at any one time, and the majority of patrolmen are not willing to accept that restriction.

If that issue were dealt with, the contract could be signed, according to the unidentified patrolman.

Patrolman Fred Sunderland, union secretary, has been out on disability since 1988 for emotional stress. Patrolman Thomas Siopes, union president, has been out since Nov. 29, 1991, when he suffered chest pains. Patrolman Frank Froburg has been out since September with a back problem and has since had a disc operation. Patrolman Calvin Metcalf has been out since Feb. 10 with a back problem and was due to return to work by the end of this week.

Patrolmen have been without a contract for almost three years. The contract they are negotiating now will cover fiscal year 1990, 1991 and 1992, and will end this June 30. If and when a contract is signed, negotiations will have to begin immediately on the next three-year contract.

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, said Wednesday he didn't want to discuss the details of the latest failure in the negotiations with the union.

"I don't want to make any statements until I talk to them," Mr. Stapczynski said Wednesday.

day. "We're going to continue talking."

Officer Siopes also wanted to avoid discussing the issues until he has a chance to meet with Mr. Stapczynski this Monday.

"We're still not that far apart," Officer Siopes said.

Wire cutters were used to cut ornaments from the cars.

The three were not arrested, but will be processed through the juvenile system, according to Officer Cronin.

Several incidents of youths taking hood ornaments off cars were reported in the past week or two, especially in the area of town offices and the Doherty Middle School on Bartlet Street. The three youths caught Monday were all Doherty students, according to Officer Cronin.

At about 3 p.m. last Tuesday, March 17, a youth was taken to Lawrence General Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises on his face following a fight behind the gas company building on Elm Street, near the rear of the old Park Street bowling alley. The original report to police said brass knuckles had been used in the fight, but Officer Cronin said it was actually a hood ornament.

The damage to a car is in excess of $100 when a hood ornament is stolen, according to Officer Cronin. Officer Cronin said the ornaments can't really be resold, but are considered something of a status symbol among the students.

"It seems to be an afternoon pastime," Officer Cronin said.

Police were hoping the detention of the three youths Monday would be a warning to others to leave the cars alone, Officer Cronin said.

Steppin' up

By Don Staruk

If one local businesswoman gets her way, town offices parking lot will be turned into the area's biggest-ever step-aerobics classroom Friday, May 1.

Christine Estabrook, owner of Silverado Athletic Club, a women's health club in Park Street Village, asked the selectmen last week for permission to hold the step exercise class and is now estimating that between 500 and 1,000 people will take part.

The event would celebrate the Great American Workout Day and kick off National Physical Fitness Month. It would also coincide with a workout held on the White House lawn the same day.

A registration fee would be charged and proceeds would benefit Andover's teen events and senior citizens. The fee has not been set and will depend on whether T-shirts are provided and how many sponsors take part, according to Ms. Estabrook. The class will be for adults only for liability reasons.

Step aerobics is a popular exercise program done to music that involves stepping up and down on an adjustable platform while simultaneously performing upper body movements.

"It's a high-intensity, low-impact program," Ms. Estabrook said. "It's an easy exercise to do. It's not dancey."

She is trying to get Reebok, the athletic equipment company, to donate 1,000 steps for the event. She is also hoping to get local businesses involved by having them donate raffle and door prizes.

Ms. Estabrook originally asked to hold the class at 6 p.m. in the municipal parking lot at Park Street Village, but selectmen said that might disrupt businesses. Selectman James Barenboim suggested the lot at town offices would be empty at that time.

Ms. Estabrook said she is also talking to Jim Hurley about using the high school lot.

Selectmen encouraged Ms. Estabrook to continue planning the event.

As a side note, Selectman Gerald Silverman said he would not be able to attend the aerobics class because it's the same night as the senior prom at Georgetown High School, where Mr. Silverman is principal. He said he may come by for a short time take part in this tuxedo.

John O'Brien, Planning Board chairman who was at last week's selectmen's meeting, told Mr. Silverman he'd give him the $5 if he showed up in his tux.

Raytheon lays off 80 here in Andover

By Don Staruk

Raytheon Co. issued layoff notices to 80 employees at its missiles systems plant on Lowell Street last week.

The notices were among 340 given out at four Merrimack Valley plants. In Lowell, 200 workers lost their jobs, while 50 in Tewksbury and 10 in Bedford were put out of work.

"All four of these locations are part of our missiles systems division," Ed Powers, Raytheon spokesman, said last week.

The layoffs, which are effective next month, are the result of work being completed in certain areas and cost cutting measures, according to Mr. Powers.

The layoffs come on the heels of an announcement two weeks ago by the Pentagon that it intends to sell Kuwait $2.5 billion worth of missiles, including six Patriot missile systems with 450 Patriot missiles, and six Hawk systems with 342 Hawk missiles. Both Patriot and Hawk systems are built at the Lowell Street plant.

But the Kuwait sale still needs to make its way through a 30-day Congressional review followed by government negotiations.

The Pentagon made a similar announcement in January, that it intended to sell Patriot missiles to Saudi Arabia. That plan was approved by Congress but is still in government-to-government negotiations, according to Mr. Powers, and Raytheon hopes to sign a Saudi contract this spring. A similar delay is expected on the Kuwait contract.

Neither contract would result in a spike of hirings at any of the Raytheon plants, according to Mr. Powers. But both contracts would "add continuity to production and therefore add continuity to employment," Mr. Powers said.

As of March 1, Raytheon had 5,600 employees at the missiles systems division in Andover, and 275 in its Advanced Device Center, both on Lowell Street.

Susan Rochwarg receives sales award

Susan Rochwarg, a sales associate at RE/MAX Preferred, Andover/North Andover, was among the more than 4,000 RE/MAX affiliates from throughout North America to attend the 19th annual RE/MAX International convention in Atlanta, Ga.

Ms. Rochwarg received a 100 percent club award at an international awards celebration. A RE/MAX associate must earn commissions of $100,000 or more in a single year to receive this award.

"We applaud Susan on her achievement," said Kathleen K. Sisinger, regional director of RE/MAX of New England. "Her success is indicative of her professionalism and of the superior service she provides to her clients."

General Norman Schwarzkopf was the organization's keynote speaker. He addressed the group on leadership, values and the importance of setting personal and professional standards that are high, but achievable. There are two rules, he said, by which everyone should live: "When placed in command, take charge" and "Always do what is right."

He said our society is in need of strong leaders with sound moral consciences and he urged RE/MAX professionals to continue to have high standards as this would result in continued high performance in the real estate field.

RE/MAX International is the second largest real estate franchise in North America with more than 1,900 offices and 30,000 sales associates in the RE/MAX network across the United States and Canada. All RE/MAX associates are full-time professionals with an average of 10 years' experience in the industry. Each office is independently owned and operated.

At far right, Fermi 2's employee of the year, John O'Donnell, formerly of Andover, who is acting supervisor of quality engineering at his firm, explains engineering methods to some Japanese visitors and others at the firm.

Former Andover resident named employee of the year

Detroit Michigan Edison has named John O'Donnell 1991 employee of the year. He was selected from 21 candidates by peers and supervisors. A panel of management and past award-winners reviewed the nominations and narrowed it down to one finalist.

Mr. O'Donnell was selected for his key role involving replacement of brass tubing with titanium tubes. The replacement job required three million feet of titanium tubing, about 568 miles worth, or roughly the distance from Detroit to Chicago and back.

This record-setting retubing the plant condenser was awarded the 1991 top industrial engineering achievement by Michigan Society of Professional Engineers.

The award and retubing gained attention internationally. Five Japanese nuclear executives visited Edison Fermi 2 plant and learned how employees and contractors set an industry standard by replacing nearly 60,000 condenser tubes in less than 63 days, at a cost of 7.5 percent under budget, while other plants have taken 75 to 100 days to do it.

Executive M. Ikehare wrote Mr. O'Donnell, expressing appreciation for hospitality extended his colleagues and himself as well as the opportunity for foreign exchange of industrial achievement.

He enclosed a book written by Mr. Morita, chairman of Sony Corp. The author not only tells about Japanese culture, but also how he paved a way toward the excellence of the company.

Mr. O'Donnell graduated from Andover High School in 1972 and the University of Lowell in 1976 with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering. He is the son of Frances O'Donnell of 34 Lincoln St. and the late Lewis O'Donnell.

EVENING & WEEKEND APPOINTMENTS AVAILABLE

Group offers braille transcription

The Lowell Association for the Blind Inc. is notifying private business firms, printers and sign-making firms that the association can provide braille transcription services. The new Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) includes a number of suggested requirements for employers to help make their place of business more accessible to the disabled worker, including those who are blind or visually impaired. The Lowell Association, located in downtown Lowell, has transcription services available that will transcribe print into braille for signs, information papers, employee manuals and other uses.

According to Association Executive Director Arthur Kelts, the LAB's Center for the Blind and Visually Impaired has computerized equipment to scan English printing, transfer it to the computer for editing and print the information in braille. The center can transcribe into laser printed "simulated" braille for printing and sign making. The center has worked with other agencies to provide braille Dymo-tape stripping to existing signs.

The center has received inquiries about braille for direction signs, rest room signs, room numbers, elevator floors numbers, parking directions, first aid and emergency directions and other uses for employers. Retail and service businesses are considering adding braille instructions to various signs, as well as large print signs for those with low vision. Mr. Kelts stated that if an employer has a question about the use of braille or would like to receive the fee schedule for the braille transcription services provided by the center, they can call 454-5704 or come to the association offices at 174 Central St., Lowell, anytime between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

He is looking for a Boston Marathon partner

Dan Tambasco, of 11 Washington Ave., called last week to say his French brother-in-law, Jacques Douvrain, is coming to the states to run the Boston Marathon next month and wants to run it with some locals.

"He's coming in the Tuesday before the marathon," Mr. Tambasco said.

Mr. Douvrain, 52, has run marathons before, including Paris and last year's Boston Marathon.

He finished in 3:25:04 at Boston last year, good enough to requalify this year. Qualifying time is 3:30 for the 50-59 age group for men.

Mr. Tambasco said his brother-in-law is hoping to meet some Andover runners to get some miles in during the week before the race.

and to travel to Hopkinton with on Patriot's Day.

Mr. Tambasco will stay in Andover with his brother-in-law and sister, GERALDINE, and their two children, Dan and Myriam.

The Boston Marathon will be run on Patriot's Day, Monday, April 20, beginning at noon in Hopkinton. It finishes on Boylston Street in downtown Boston, 26.2 miles later.

Any Andover residents or local workers who are planning to run in Boston, or who have a friend or relative who will be running, are invited to call the Townsmen so they can be included in our marathon coverage.

PETS IN THE "HOUSE FOR SALE"

A dog or cat may be a home-seller's best friend under ordinary conditions, but once your property is listed for sale, you must be extra careful that pet smells are eliminated. Most prospective buyers, even if they have pets of their own, and even if their pets smell just like yours do, will be put off by animal odors.

If you have a problem, you might hire a professional to clean your furniture and carpets, or, if necessary, remove them from the property. If you have a cat box inside the house, check it frequently and keep the litter fresh.

When Realtors bring prospective buyers through your home, it's a good idea to let dogs or cats outside (if they are outdoor animals) or confine them to one area of the house. Some people have allergies and others have irrational fears of some pets. It may be hard for a buyer to appreciate your home through puffy, watery eyes or in between sneezes! If a buyer or Realtor is afraid of being eaten by Fido, the chances of your home getting sold to that buyer are lessened, even if the house is exactly what he wants.

Middle schools join for math meet honors

Students from Doherty and West middle schools placed eighth in the MathCounts state competition held recently at Amherst Regional Junior High School.

MathCounts is a national math competition for sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders. The participating students were Susan Ashlock, Brian Cronin, Pratap Penumalli, Justin Weir and David Sullivan from Doherty and Matthew McGrath from West. They were accompanied by Marcia Harol, coach of the Doherty math team.

Individual honors go to Justin Weir for placing seventh and Matthew McGrath for his ninth-place finish among the 93 students in the state competition. Susan Ashlock placed 23rd in the contest.

The students competed against 24 schools from throughout Massachusetts. They participated in written and oral exams in such subjects as probability, statistics, linear algebra and polynomials.

A team comprising the top five individuals from the state competition will represent Massachusetts in the national competition in Washington, D.C., on May 15.

MathCounts is a nationwide series of competitions designed to stimulate student interest and achievement in mathematics.

Its national sponsors are the National Society of Professional Engineers, the CNA Insurance Companies, the Cray Research Foundation, General Motors Foundation, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Students get lesson in puppetry

An artist in residence at West Elementary School focused on two of kids' natural skills - imagination and creativity - in a one-week program sponsored by the school's Parent-Teacher Organization.

Kathleen Pletcher, a resident of Providence, R.I., and New York City, kicked off her week "in residence" at West by conducting an introduction to the art of puppetry at an assembly of third- and fourth-graders.

Ms. Pletcher explained how she develops and builds puppets and uses them to tell stories.

"I think of myself as a storyteller using puppets," she said. While using her puppets to demonstrate, she explained that either complex or simple puppets may be made after first determining what specific functions the puppets are to perform.

According to Ms. Pletcher, some puppets have only one function and are built to do something very specific, while others may assume a variety of functions. Using your voice in an exaggerated manner is also necessary in order to make puppets more realistic and give them a personality, she said.

"Each puppet must have feelings, movement and a voice," she added. The students were then treated to a performance of "The Stone Cutter," a Japanese fable.

During the week, Louann Chiotelis' third-grade class built their own full-body puppets to create characters for a performance of a Czechoslovakian folk tale, "The Little Rooster and the Little Hen."

The young puppeteers were able to integrate the school's theme for the year of "cooperation and caring" into their performance.

Although Mrs. Chiotelis' class gave the only actual performance, all third- and fourth-grade classes spent time with the artist learning how to make "envelope" puppets and how to express themselves through their puppets.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

MAINTAINING HEALTH

Most people do not visit a health professional until they are faced with a health crisis. Chiropractic philosophy would have patients take a preventive approach to disease, which would largely work to deal with health problems before they arise. Such a maintenance program recognizes that the stress and demands placed on the spine are ongoing. By counteracting these forces on a regular basis, the patient is less likely to reach a point where their accumulated effect will take a toll on health. This approach is analogous to the car owner who submits his or her car for periodic maintenance in an effort to prevent more costly damage to the automobile. This active approach to health care is undertaken in the belief that good health does not just happen, it is nurtured.

Preventive health care is more cost effective than emergency or acute care and today many insurance programs include chiropractic in their coverage. If you would like more information, please call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We offer natural and safe care for the entire family. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. The restriction of spinal mobility known as fixation often occurs with no outward symptoms.

Anti-drug group leads workshop for parents

A free drug-prevention workshop for parents of children in grades four through eight and other interested parents will be hosted by Andover's Parent-To-Parent and Community ASK Team Tuesday, April 7, from 7 to 9 p.m.

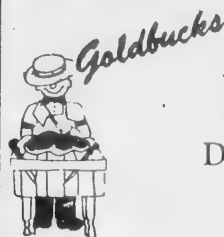

The workshop will be presented at the Bancroft Elementary School media center by the FCD (Freedom from Chemical Dependency Foundation), a non-profit alcohol and drug education organization based in Needham.

"Few children in fourth through eighth grade have problems with alcohol or other drugs, and this workshop is designed to keep it that way," said workshop director William Crawford of the FCD Foundation.

"The workshop is designed especially for parents because they alone have the greatest positive impact on their child's development during the early years when the child is most teachable," Mr. Crawford added.

Joya Scott, daughter of Cliff and Ellen Scott of Andover, serves up pizza for an event at the Clark School, where she is a student. Joya's school is planning its fifth annual auction Friday, March 27, at the King's Grant Inn, Route 128 North at Trask Lane, Danvers. A silent auction will begin at 6 p.m. with a live auction at 7. Proceeds will benefit the Clark School for Creative Learning, a small day school for average to very bright children in kindergarten to eighth grade.

Girls taking a class in self-esteem and career choices asked three professional women to talk to them about their experiences. Seventh-graders, clockwise, from left, Meghan Donahue, Courtney Osborne and Britta Eberle were joined by Christine Estabrook, Peg Campbell and Melissa DeMeo.

Class designed to build girls' self-esteem

Four girls explored their futures in a class called "Choices." The national curriculum is under the auspices of the American Association of University Women.

Meghan Donahue, Britta Eberle, Kelly Grieco and Courtney Osborne received certificates for their participation in the course, which will be repeated next fall by the DCS.

Peg Campbell, DCS program coordinator; Melissa DeMeo, assistant editor of The Townsman; and Christine Estabrook, owner of Silverado Athletic Club, gave talks.

West wordsmiths honored

Sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade teams representing West Middle School won high honors in the second meet of this year's WordMasters Challenge, a national language-arts competition.

Competing in the difficult blue division and supervised by Paula Eichner, the school's sixth-graders finished in a five-way tie (with school teams from Troy, Mich.; Blaine and Woodbury, Minn.; and Greenwich, Conn.) for ninth place in the nation, while its seventh-graders finished third in the nation. The eighth-graders also finished in a five-way tie (with school teams from Royal Palm Beach, Fla.; Brick, N.J.; Charlotte, N.C.; and Massillon, Ohio) for third place among the hundreds of school teams participating at each level.

Seventh-grader Robert Kwon and eighth-grader Patrick Sharkey earned a perfect score in the meet.

They were among only 17 seventh-graders and seven eighth-graders in the country to do so. Others who achieved outstanding results include sixth-graders Rachel Venuti, Lauren Sweeney and Hieu Nguyen; seventh-graders Kathryn Rose and Marc Tropeano and eighth-graders Tamar Carroll, Cindy Su, Aaron Cooper and Rosemary Wang.

A difficult test of vocabulary and verbal reasoning, the WordMasters Challenge first encourages students to become thoroughly familiar with a set of new words (considerably harder than grade level) and then challenges them to use these words to complete analogies expressing various kinds of logical relationships, Mrs. Eichner explained.

In many ways the WordMasters Challenge resembles the reasoning ability measured for high school juniors and seniors by the verbal SAT exam, she said.

School display recognizes famous American women

The American Association of University Women's regional branch has assembled a bulletin board display at West Middle School highlighting the achievements of American women, past and present, as well as a selection of biographies from the school's media center. AAUW officials say they hope the display will serve as a motivational tool for girls to recognize their own potential.

Academic Bowl meets today

The Greater Lawrence Educational Collaborative is sponsoring the Academic Bowl Thursday, March 26, at Doherty Middle School. The Academic Bowl helps middle school students make intercommunity friendships, develop school pride and learn team work with students of different ethnic and socioeconomic backgrounds, according to advisers Jean Finn and Irene Crane.

This year Doherty is teamed with the Bruce Lawrence in Lawrence for the academic competition.

Seventh-grade Academic Bowl members are Liz Clinkenbeard, Matt Wessler, Nathan Coates, Brian DeMartino, Paul Pennelli and Nick Wilson. Eighth-grade members are Susan Ashlock, Jeff Pincus, Jen Schapira, Chris Halecki, Pat Hess, David Huberman, Andrea Martin, Jen Munroe, Keith Putnam, Hugh Quattlebaum and Randy Spiegel.

The first meet on Feb. 25 resulted in a close score: Tenney-Frost team, 615; Doherty-Bruce team, 585.

Parents are welcome to the meet, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium.

West honored in language contest

The WordMasters word lists and analogies, however, have been specifically designed to challenge elementary and middle school students. "They are particularly well suited for able and interested students who rise to the challenge of mastering new words and enjoy the logical puzzles posed by analogies," Mrs. Eichner said.

The school's students will participate in one more WordMasters meet this year, and medals and certificates will be awarded in June to those who have achieved and/or improved the most.

They were coached by sixth-grade teachers Charlie Donovan, Maurice Ferris, Jim Redmond and Sue Rogers; seventh-grade teachers Dolores Laughlin and Joan Zenofsky; and eighth-grade teachers Paula Eichner and Joe Hagan.

Puppeteer tells students about her craft

By [illegible]

Third-grade teacher Evelyn Wrobel said the residency was well-timed because it followed a workshop on process writing.

"Students have been working on character development and fiction writing and were able to use their background knowledge to write plays for their envelope puppets," she said. In order to extend the impact of the residency, a series of activities were provided for teachers to start at a later time.

"The students' understanding of what a puppet is was broadened this week by this extremely energetic artist," said West's assistant principal, Charles Friel.

Ms. Pletcher began her career in puppetry in 1975 working with a classical puppet theater in Japan. Founder and director of the Ragabash Puppet Theater, she has traveled through Asia and studied in Bali with a mask master. Ragabash has performed at the Smithsonian Institute.

One of Ms. Pletcher's biggest fans is her nephew, Brian Pletcher, a fourth-grader at West Elementary. He is the son of Janet and Steve Pletcher.

ANDOVER HIGH SCHOOL

Welcome to the AHS page in the Townsmen

By Jen Merenda

Welcome to the Andover High School page in the Andover Townsman. Come on in and enjoy our sports, talents and student body.

In the next few editions, the readers of the Andover Townsman will find a new page to read (the last Thursday of the month). This page will be written and organized by the AHS journalism classes and any other members of the high school who would like to submit their work. There will be stories about upcoming school events, sports, students who are achievers and a variety of other subjects. The editors of this page welcome your story suggestions and comments.

Students may also submit art work and photographs that illustrate some of the stories printed on the page. The pictures can also be feature pictures, ones that illustrate a story, but are relevant or able to tell a story by themselves.

The students are hard at work trying to organize and think of ideas that would benefit the page. Dave Gangi, an AHS English and journalism teacher, has chosen four of his journalism students to work directly with the staff of the Andover Townsman. The four students, Amy Hart, Jackie Flowers, Jennifer Letch and Bob Sheehan, will work as editors of the page. The team of four will review the submitted articles and work and decide if they are to be submitted and printed on the page.

Students are working hard and hope that the page will be a big success. The people of Andover high who are working on the project know they have the talent and support needed to make it a hit. They are hoping to bring the town and school closer and more involved with each other by sharing and explaining the events and talents that go on within the high school walls.

This page is for the adults and students of Andover to enjoy together, and the staff and students are hoping for the best.

'What's going on in Andover this weekend?'

'We need a drop-in center'

By Sheri Culver

Every weekend a familiar question is asked among many teen-agers. "What's going on this weekend?" The problem is that the answer to this question is usually, "I don't know," or "This is Andover, nothing's going on."

However, occasionally, there will be something going on, such as a party. In the latter case, a large number of teen-agers flock together at someone's house to hang out for the majority of the night. Some people choose to drink, while others choose to remain sober for personal reasons or for the responsibility of being the designated driver. The parties that remain rather small don't usually get broken up by the police, while the larger parties usually do unless there is adult supervision.

Andover is a small, sheltered town that doesn't offer many activities for teen-agers on the weekends, according to teens. Many of them drive around aimlessly or out of town to Lawrence, North Andover, looking for something to do.

Going to the movies, renting movies, driving around or eating out are activities that become extremely boring over a period of time. A few local hangouts in Andover are McDonald's and Friendly's, although you will find a larger number of your peers at Harrison's in North Andover.

Is eating and driving around the only thing to do? People certainly don't want to eat all night and all driving around usually accomplishes is nothing except wasting your gas and time. Many teens find themselves in a repetitive cycle of boredom in which they go to a friend's house or drive around having just an OK time.

This town is boring and needs some excitement, say teens.

"There should be a place where everyone can go and hang out," said Kelly Young, a junior at Andover High.

Kids say they resent Andover

By Erik Greenstein

The town of Andover is known for its rich atmosphere, luscious homes and great school system. So why do so many teen-agers resent living here? Most students say because there is nothing to do on the weekends.

"Ever since they got rid of the bowling alley that was up town, there has been nothing for us to do," explains Tania Pierce, a senior at Andover High.

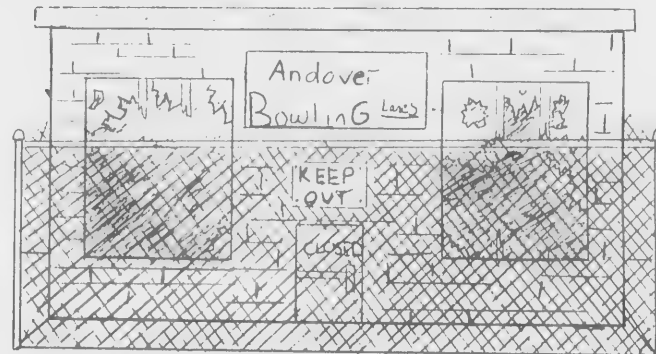

Andover is a rich town, many kids say. It has many little shops for those chores that people do on weekends. It also has many big businesses in the area, such as Raytheon, Digital and the IRS, but in terms of activities for the kids of

This place could have pool tables, ping-pong tables, large screen TVs, a stereo, a dance floor, video games and a variety of food. Not everyone would go there every weekend, but when there's nothing going on, which accounts for most of the weekends, there would probably be a great deal of people there. After a school sports event played at night, students could go there to celebrate their win or just to be with friends after a loss.

To prevent tedious weekends, many students attend school functions such as sports events and dances.

If the town and the police department can intervene into situations where there are a large number of teens, drunk or sober, at parties, why can't they become involved now to provide a place where teens can socialize with their peers?

How would this center be financed?

Any other ideas on what to do Tonight?

Cameron Arnett

Cartoon by Cameron Arnett

The students of Andover High should be involved extensively to raise money for this idea to transpire. It would be expensive to initiate, but once it opened, the profits would pay for itself over and over again. In order to enter the building, a student ID representing a high school or college would be necessary along with a fee, predictably under $10. The price would be well worth it because it would allow the students to do a variety of things with their peers for a low cost.

Who would work at this facility? Basically, anyone could work there. Employees would range from high school students, college students and older community members.

This building would offer safe and diverse entertainment for teen-agers which would benefit the whole community. Some ramifications of this could be a decrease in teen-age automobile accidents, loitering and excessive parties.

"Having a place where teen-agers can socialize, there would be no need for problems that teens have these days (drinking and drugs). If they keep busy or occupy their time with social or school events, the existing problems that teenagers face could be decreased," said AHS senior Minh Nguyen.

ANDOVER HIGH SCHOOL

Kids say they resent Andover

Andover, it has a great deal of catching up to do.

Students in Andover feel that the only way to have fun is to go to someone's house, get as drunk as possible, trash it and then leave the house, leaving the owner to clean it up. They think that's fun.

"Drinking is a big part of the social life for the kids in Andover," says Albert Giangregorio. "I don't have a license and neither do most of my friends, so it's either stay at home with your parents or find an empty house to get drunk."

Some students, like Jennifer Batts, feel that the weekend entertainment also involves school sports. This is true, Andover does bring out many fans for their school teams, but students ask, what do you do when all of the games are over or if there are no sports in session?

Kids today mostly hang out at McDonald's, but even after a while they would be kicked out for loitering. With the night still young and nothing to do, they find themselves in a bind.

Jowita Borowicki, a student at Andover high, says, "Because there is nothing to do here I usually go into Hampton or Boston to hang out at clubs."

"Drinking is a big part of the social life for the kids in Andover."

Albert Giangregorio

There are bowling alleys, movie theaters, pool halls and arcades but they are in other towns and people don't want to make the drive. Plus, they feel that they shouldn't have to leave the vicinity of their home town to have fun.

Kevin Ring, a senior at Andover high, suggested that "Andover should open a boys' club with basketball courts, arcades, a pool hall with two or three pool tables, and even a dance floor for anyone who wants to dance the night away."

The parties here can get wild, kids admit, but what most students are complaining about is the fact that they get broken up at an early hour.

One Andover High student complains, "I would get to a party at eight o'clock and the cops would bust it up at 10, and after I have had a few too many they would want us to get into our cars and drive away."

Municipal Maintenance is slipping away

This is the eighth part of a series on town employee salaries the Townsman will run before April Town Meeting. This list is just a portion of the total town payroll. These figures are for calendar year 1991.

By Don Staruk

When the last $200,000 for capital projects was cut from the Department of Municipal Maintenance budget last year, it put a stop to a lighting project at West Middle School, but gave the department a chance to catch up on other work.

Now the department is "just about keeping up with work orders," according to Fred Jaeschke, DMM director, but is still falling behind elsewhere.

Municipal Maintenance had two layoffs last June, when a painter position and a grounds maintenance worker were cut. The two painters before couldn't even keep up with the work that was needed, according to Mr. Jaeschke, "so one doesn't have a chance."

"We're slipping back behind all the time," Mr. Jaeschke said.

The proposed Municipal Maintenance budget includes an increase of $906,095 in Fiscal '93, largely due to a capital improvements appropriation of $900,000. That may put the lighting project back on schedule, but won't help the employees keep up with the day-to-day work that will still need to be done.

The current budget proposal doesn't call for any salary increases this year, other than a few step raises. But at least it doesn't call for any more layoffs, provided the state doesn't make any unexpected cuts in state aid, according to Mr. Jaeschke.

"At the moment I'm level funded and level employees," Mr. Jaeschke said.

Personnel and changes

James Bamford is superintendent of the Parks, Cemeteries and Forestry departments. Kenneth Parker is superintendent of buildings and James Brightney is superintendent of the Plumbing, Heating and Electric and the Vehicle Maintenance departments.

Linda Lemieux worked part-time in administration but left in 1991. Carolyn Lynch works part-time. Linda Slow and Rose Vandewalle are part-time switchboard operators.

Selma Flieder is a part-time clerical worker with Jacquelyn Connors, who is in charge of rentals at Old Town Hall and of the town's athletic fields.

A story in last week's Townsman about Department of Public Works salaries ("No raises for DPW") incorrectly listed the last name of the administrative assistant as McQuade. Dennis Sheehan is the administrative assistant to Bob McQuade, DPW director, and the two are not related.

Educational TV

Schools hook up via satellite

Sixth-graders at West Middle School got a chance to interact with their peers from Quincy via satellite.

West Middle's Silver Team participated in the program The Rebirth of the Fore River Shipyard, hosted by Quincy Middle School through the Massachusetts Corporation for Educational Telecommunications.

MCET programming goes to all Andover schools and the community through Heritage Cablevision's Channel 12. MCET programs enhance class work, while interacting live with the students.

The Quincy students demonstrated the working of a dry dock and depicted the role of women in the shipyard business during World War II.

The students' reactions to the program were positive. "I thought the show was swell," said Catherine Kaleel of 5 Sioux Circle, "but I was disappointed when my question couldn't be answered on the air since there wasn't enough time left in the show.

"The studio told me to stay on the phone and they would answer it after the show was over."

Gregory Dennis of 9 Belle Haven Drive found the show "very informative."

"The host students were very well-informed on the topic," he said.

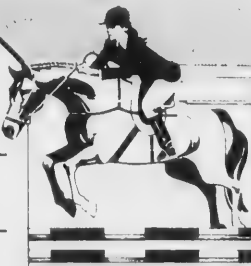

MCET programming is scheduled at various times during the week. Each school has a schedule and descriptions of the programs and are able to participate at any time, explained Ken Kwajewski, technology and media director for Andover schools.

The signal for MCET is received through a satellite dish on the roof of Andover High School. Some of the MCET programs are being taped rather than viewed live due to scheduling conflicts so teachers can use the programs later, Mr. Kwajewski added.

You're looking swell, Dolly

Mother-daughter team outfits Junior Theatre

By Sue O'Neill

When Merrimack Junior Theatre's Hello, Dolly takes the stage in April at Doherty Middle School's auditorium, the cast will wear the talents of a unique costuming duo.

Karen and Robin Dettnerman of Andover are responsible for turning 51 young actors and actresses into fully suited denizens of turn-of-the-century Yonkers. Although such transformation is standard fare for MJT costume directors — who have, over the years, turned children into donkeys, witches

This is the first time an MJT actress has signed on as a co-chairwoman of costuming. Even more unusual is the fact that Robin is in the current production as a member of the chorus.

According to Karen Dettnerman, Robin does not just do scrap work passed down by her mother. She designed a number of the complicated 1890s-era dresses, helped with the sewing and is in charge of the production's hats — more than 60 of nearly every description.

Hello, Dolly will be presented April 3, 4 and 5 at the Doherty Middle School auditorium. Performances are Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m.

and dragons — this year the job has a new twist: Robin, co-chairwoman of the costuming committee, is Karen's 12-year-old daughter.

MJT stages two musicals a year, one for children in the third through sixth grades and a second for sixth- through 10th-graders. It is not unusual for older MJT actors to work backstage for the younger children's plays or for veterans too old to be in either production to work on both yearly musicals. Those who do usually work on stage, lighting or house crews.

She's good, says Dolly stage manager Dana Gum. "I've seen a lot of Robin's work, and sometimes I can't tell the difference between hers and her mother's."

Not surprisingly, Robin came by her interest in costuming through her mother. Four years ago, although she didn't consider herself a seamstress, Mrs. Dettnerman volunteered to help with costumes for the MJT production of Pinocchio because Robin's older sister, Carly, was in it.

"I made donkey ears, about two dozen pairs of donkey ears," she recalls, "and they knew they had me."

Carly continued to act in MJT productions and Robin also took up theater. Their mother continued to work on costumes, first as co-chairwoman with Pat Henderson, then, when Ms. Henderson moved to Cincinnati last year, with Priscilla Bradway.

Earlier this year, Mrs. Dettnerman was working on the younger kids' play, Robin Hood, when Robin decided to help. First, she designed the costume worn by the Sheriff of Nottingham.

Then she started to put together outfits her mother had cut out. Then she began to take over. "Robin would say, 'Let's work on costumes.' I'd say, 'I've got to do dishes' or something, and she'd go down in the basement and sew."

Andover woman reads poems at tea

By Sue O'Neill

Andover poet Eleanor Campbell will read from her works for "Tea at Three" at Andover Book and Prints Sunday, March 29.

Ms. Campbell's poetry has been published in magazines and newspapers, including the Eagle-Tribune and the Christian Science Monitor. Recently, she published a prose story in Country Living magazine.

A mother of seven, grandmother of 10 and great-grandmother of two, Ms. Campbell says, "I have written a lot about children and families growing up."

She considers her poetry "not terribly artistic and not terribly obscure. Someone said, 'It stopped just this side of being sentimental,'" she laughs. "As long as it stopped."

Ms. Campbell has also published local histories, including West of the Shawshoos, a history of West Parish Church, and A Red Cloak for Mother, an account of the Smith family of Andover. The Smiths, of the early Smith and Dove Textile Mill, helped found Memorial Hall Library and donated large grants to such Andover concerns as the historical society and West Parish Church.

Ms. Campbell began to recognize her talents when she was in sixth grade. A young teacher who had taken poetry teaching courses taught her class the basics.

"I've been writing poems ever since," she says. She has not yet collected her many poems to publish them in book form.

"I've had the urge," she admits, "but I keep thinking I haven't written the best one yet."

Andover Books and Prints, 68 Park St., serves "Tea at Three" from 3 to 4 p.m. on Sundays in the shop. The program is free.

Walking with Children in Spring

We walk the fields and wonder as the miracles unfold;
when spring and tiny grasses green the meadow's gold.

Listen to the redwing!
Watch the hawk high on the tree;
the cardinal shared, this afternoon,
his handsome company.

When the wind is changed and gentle and the sky's a softer blue, do you think, in some mysterious way, we might be changing, too?

By Eleanor Campbell

Authors give talk about their work

Three local authors will talk about their craft in a program sponsored by the Andover-Georgetown branch of the American Association of University Women.

Jeanne Schinto, Ron Geiger and Jeanette Maes will speak Thursday, March 26, at 7:45 p.m. at the Lawrence Savings Bank, Shawshoos, at the intersections of Routes 28 and 133. There is no charge for admission.

Jeanne Schinto, of Lawrence, will discuss her first novel, Children of Men, and the difficulties getting a novel published.

Ron Geiger, of New Hampshire, will discuss Memoirs of the Midwest, his first novel. He will also discuss writing a first novel.

Poet Jeanette Maes, of Lynn, will discuss her writings and read some of her poetry.

AAUW is a national organization involved in equality in education for girls. For further information about the programs or membership in AAUW, call Andover-Georgetown branch president Cindy Osborne at 474-4325.

Why Dolly looks swell . . .

And so, because, as she says, "I couldn't keep her away," Mrs. Dettmerman recruited her daughter to be co-chairwoman for Hello, Dolly's costuming. From the beginning, the two pored over library books about clothing styles of the 1890s, noting fashions peculiar to both the leisure and working classes of the day (Hello, Dolly features both). Then, they watched the movie; from what she saw, Robin sketched designs for dresses.

Their homework done, the Detttermans set to work. Because many costumes for MJT productions are recycled, with revisions from previous plays, the two combed the MJT warehouse in Dundee Place and retrieved appropriate "used" items for some of the characters. They also solicited clothing from parents. Among the contributions was a wedding dress (worn by Karen Kirley in the picture on page 25), which parent Sue Witham bought some years ago at Filene's Basement and wore in a South Church pageant.

Karen and Robin also checked out Building 19 and Goodwill stores in Lawrence and Manchester, N.H., for ball gowns and other potential costumes.

What they couldn't find, they made. The eight parents on the costume committee helped, assembling pieces Mrs. Detterman had cut out and given to them as "kits."

The finished period costumes, according to Karen, "remind me of Main Street USA in Disneyland." Each has a hat, custom decorated by Robin: "Straw" hats, made authentic looking with shoe polish, wide-brimmed creations with great glued bouquets, feathered bonnets, and even a chef's hat.

Amy Wilkins as the incomparable Dolly touches up the rich and eligible Horace Vandergelder, played by Todd Buonopane. Their turn-of-the-century look is the handiwork of mother-daughter team Karen and Robin Dettnerman, who are spending hundreds of hours outfitting the cast of Hello, Dolly.

Keeping track of costumes requires a great deal of organization. Since every child, from chorus member to lead, has a number of pieces to each costume - and, in many cases, a number of costume changes - Karen keeps a notebook with the needs of every character, scene by scene. Robin also has her pages in the book, charting hat needs, also by the scene. Costumes are ultimately distributed to each actor with a small index card listing every piece.

"I try to make each child responsible for their stuff," Mrs. Detterman says.

She also tries to make sure each child is content with what he or she receives. "I want them to be comfortable," she says. "If they don't feel good in it, even though we think it looks great, it won't work. The chorus is as excited about their costumes as the leads."

The Dettermans discover the full effect of their work on "costume night," when everybody comes to rehearsal in their finished creations. "It isn't until costume night that you know how it looks together," Mrs. Detterman says. "Then, you just make a list of what has to be fixed."

From the initial research to opening night, she estimates that she and Robin will have spent "hundreds and hundreds" of hours on costuming the 51-member cast. "It's very demanding," she says. "I feel like I'm doing costumes full time. I feel like my job as a substitute teacher is on the side."

But it has its rewards as well. "I really enjoy the kids a lot," she says. "I've been with the group long enough to see them grow up year after year, to see them succeeding."

Jazz pianist in concert

Jazz pianist Bevan Manson will perform at Memorial Hall Library Sunday, March 29, at 3 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Library and dedicated to the memory of Judy Medler, past member of the board of the Friends, who died of cancer in December.

Performing with Mr. Manson will be Bob Nieske on bass and Matt Wilson on drums. Their program will be comprised of pieces from their latest CD, Rhythm Chowder.

Mr. Manson is on the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

He has performed with violinists John Blake and Leroy Jenkins, drummer Bob Moses, conductor Gunther Schuller, the big band Orange Then Blue, and the Klezmer Conservatory Band.

Mr. Manson has also scored music for film and shows, as well as concert music.

"He has distilled from this wide spectrum an individuality that both respects the jazz tradition and expands the idiom's vocabulary," according to jazz critic W. Royal Stokes.

Seating will begin at 2:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall on the second floor. The performance is free.

Handsprings craft show canceled

Phillips Academy's craft show, Handsprings, has been canceled this year. The late Easter date coincides with the only open weekend of the Phillips cage.

Organizers were unsuccessful in securing an alternative location, and opted instead to take a year off "and give the volunteers an opportunity to rest, along with the economy."

Plans will soon be under way for the ninth annual Handsprings, to be held April 17 and 18, 1993. Artisans interested in being on the mailing list for the show should send a postcard to Handsprings '93, Phillips Academy, Andover 01810.

The Handsprings committee encourages shoppers to support Crafts in The Park, the North Andover Sheep Shearing Festival, West Parish Craft Fair and other shows.

Marie Shalhoub, 79

1938 Miss Lawrence

Marie "Anita" Shalhoub, 79, of Methuen died Friday, March 20, at Lawrence General Hospital.

Born in Haverhill, Mrs. Shalhoub was educated in Haverhill schools. She worked at Lawrence Maid Shoe factory before retiring in 1976.

There are some who look at life as a process of growing old. I prefer to look at life as a process of growing.

Growing in your capacity to live. Realizing that each day, each hour is the most precious.

Growing in your capacity to learn. Knowing that you can never become perfect, but that doesn't stop you from becoming the best you can become.

Growing in your capacity to love. Understanding that the essence of life is the amount of love you leave behind.

And growing in your capacity to laugh. Believing that when you laugh the whole world truly laughs with you.

Editor's note: Richard Saggese wrote this piece June 7, 1989, and shared it with a friend in Andover.

Mrs. Shalhoub moved to Lawrence when she was married to John "Johnny Singer" Shalhoub.

In 1938, she won the Miss Lawrence beauty contest. She later moved to Methuen, where she lived for 26 years.

Mrs. Shalhoub was a member of St. Anthony's Church in Lawrence. She enjoyed cooking.

Family members include her son, Ralph Shalhoub of Methuen; daughter, Kathleen Russo of Methuen; grandson, Frank Russo of Lawrence; great-granddaughter, Nina Russo of Lawrence; brother, John Mahoney of Haverhill; sisters, Beatrice Champy of Andover, Bernadette Cardone of Merrimac, Shirley Giuffrida of Lawrence and Dorothy Fournier of Tyngsboro; and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass was held Tuesday at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in St. Anthony's Cemetery in Methuen.

Funeral arrangements were by Farrah Funeral Home in Lawrence.

Demetrios Papachronis, 94 Restaurant chef

Demetrios Papachronis, 94, formerly of 20A Washington St., died Friday, March 20, at Salem Haven Nursing Home in Salem, N.H.

Born in northern Epiros, Greece, Mr. Papachronis emigrated to the United States as a teen-ager.

He first settled in Taunton, where he worked for Coll's Bakery, delivering bakery products to area restaurants and variety stores. He spent 16 years in Philadelphia, Pa., working in the restaurant business.

Mr. Papachronis and his wife, Alexandra, settled in Andover and later in Lawrence, where he was employed as a chef in several area restaurants.

He was a member and longtime chanter at Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church in Andover.

He also was a member of the Pan Epirotic Federation of America and Canada, the Philanthropic Society of Brockton, the Politsanion of Portland, Maine, and Northern Epikos Society of Boston.

Family members include his wife, Alexandra (Kyrouris) Papachronis of Salem, N.H., and many nieces and nephews.

AMC hikes along Skug River Sunday

There are three rivers in Andover: the Merrimack, Shawsheen and Skug. On Sunday, March 29, the Andover Appalachian Mountain Club will lead a hike through the AVIS Reservation that borders the Skug River as well as some adjoining woodlands.

By far the smallest of the town's rivers, the Skug, which flows into the Ipswich River, nevertheless had sufficient water flow to allow damming and provide waterpower for early Colonial mills.

Meet leader Mark Hayes of Andover at 1:30 p.m. at the reservation entrance. From Phillips Academy, take Salem Street east to Route 125. Cross 125 and travel 1.2 miles to Skug River entrance on right.

Baptist Church sponsors Lent services

Andover Baptist Church, located at 7 Central St., is sponsoring special services on Wednesdays during Lent. Each service begins at 7 p.m. The theme is "Living for Christ in Today's World."

Biblical student John Hunter, who is also an engineer, will lead the fifth in the series April 1 on the battle of truth in a complex age.

Proposed bylaw would benefit new businesses week.

Article 39 would "give merchants and property owners more options in terms of parking-lot design and provision of off-street parking, particularly in the General Business districts." Laura Hill, town planner, said this week in a memo to Planning Board members.

The parking bylaw, passed by town meeting in 1985, controls construction and use of buildings by requiring businesses to provide adequate parking spaces for its employees and customers. The number of parking spaces required depends on the type of business.

The planning department came under fire earlier this year by a number of businesses that were trying to open, expand or build downtown but were restricted by a lack of available parking space. The amendment is the Planning Board's effort to answer some of the problems pointed out with the bylaw at that time.

The major points of the amendment would:

- Allow by special permit more flexible parking designs for proposals in the General Business districts;

- Permit a limited number of compact parking spaces in the larger parking lots;

- Promote site designs with pedestrian access between parking lots and commercial properties to encourage walking and maximum use of existing parking areas;

- Exempt businesses in a mixed-use building requiring six or less parking spaces from having to provide on-site parking;

- Lower parking requirements for retail space on upper level and basement level floors;

- Add parking ratios for other uses, such as day-care centers, nursing homes and affordable housing, which are not currently included in the bylaw;

- Provide additional allowances for uses that have limited or no on-site parking. The on-site parking requirement for a change of use or rearrangement of uses is waived if the proposal results in a net difference of three spaces or less;

- Allow proposals that lack sufficient on-site parking to seek a special permit for a change in the parking space requirements. Options include shared parking, satellite parking areas within a certain distance of the building, joint drive-ways and payment into an off-street parking fund in lieu of on-site parking spaces. Payment into the fund would be based on a per-space fee schedule adopted by the Board of Selectmen.

The idea of the off-street parking fund would be to collect money from developers which would go toward construction of municipal parking in future.

If approved at Town Meeting this year, the parking fund appropriation would have to come back to town meeting for approval every year. Because of the way the state law is written, if at some future date town meeting rejected the fund, any monies collected from developers to create parking would revert to the town's general fund.

Annual Town Meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 13, at the Collins Center. It will continue on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 14 and 15, if needed.

Little opposition

A public hearing on the proposed amendment Tuesday night drew only one resident, much to the surprise, and apparent dismay, of planners.

With all the hullabaloo created by businesses last summer and fall over the bylaw's restrictions, and the various court cases surrounding Ben Osgood's inability to develop the old Park Street bowling alley allegedly because of the bylaw, planners expected at least a show of interest in the proposed amendment.

Mr. Osgood said Wednesday he was not familiar with the details of the current amendment proposal and was not aware of this week's public hearing. But Mr. Osgood also said that his contention all along has been that existing buildings, including his, were exempt from the restriction of the bylaw.

Huston and Lyman win School Committee seats

Those 2,455 voters returned incumbents Gerald Silverman and Charles Wesson, who were running unopposed for three-year terms on the Board of Selectmen. Voters also returned James Doherty for the 15th year in a row to be the town's moderator, over long-time challenger John Doyle.

School Committee

Mr. Huston, a professor at Northern Essex Community College, garnered the most votes, 1,504, just 16 more than Ms. Lyman, formerly the town's personnel director.

Larry Lewis, another newcomer to the political scene, finished third, with 850 votes.

Parent Perry Karfunkel, of 22 Orchard Crossing, received one write-in vote.

Mr. Hubbell believes what he called his "vigorous" attempts to push a Proposition 2 1/2 override was one of the reasons he was not re-elected.

"I got a chance to raise the red flag during the campaign and that's all I could do," Mr. Hubbell told the Townsmen Tuesday.

"People don't want to listen to me because I say education is at risk and it's going to take more money and they don't want to pay more taxes," he said.

"I also think a lot of people are mad at me because I told Bill Huston to move out of town if he was having trouble paying his taxes," Mr. Hubbell said, referring to comments he made at a candidates' debate at Shawsheen School last month.

Mr. Hubbell said he has no plans to seek a spot on any of the citizen's advisory boards the School Committee has discussed.

"I got some good advice from a friend. He told me to walk away from it all," Mr. Hubbell said.

Both Mr. Huston and Ms. Lyman said they are eager to begin their work with the School Committee. In less than 24 hours after winning, they would serve at their first official meeting. (See separate story on Tuesday night's School Committee meeting.)

"I got my committee packet at 8:40 this morning," said Ms. Lyman.

"I'm ready to sit down and get on with some of the really important issues the committee has been grappling with," she said, naming redistricting, building inequities and user fees as top priorities.

Ms. Lyman, her husband, James, and their 16-month-old son live at 65 Carmel Road. She was the town's personnel manager from 1985 to 1990.

During candidates' debates, she said she believes the town and school administration could realize more savings in the employee health insurance budget. She said she supports user fees as a deterrent to cutting teachers or programs in the schools.

Mr. Huston said he was still in "a state of shock" Tuesday afternoon, being the top vote-getter.

"I can't wait to get started. I'm rally gung-ho," he said.

Mr. Huston, of 6 Garfield Lane West, is head of the sign language interpreter program at NECC. He and his wife, Marcie, have two daughters who attend the South School.

During candidates' debates, he said one of his goals will be to build better communication among town and school boards and the community.

Proposed bylaw would benefit new businesses amendment during the Planning Board's presentation of the proposal to selectmen last week. Mr. Barenboim said the off-street parking fund gave an advantage to those who could afford to buy the space they needed, and would still restrict smaller businesses from making moves.

"To me, it's holding a guy ransom," Mr. Barenboim said. "I don't like what it represents. I don't like what it would end up doing."

Ms. Hill said Tuesday the parking fund is only one part of the proposal.

"Our position is, it's an option, not a requirement," Ms. Hill said.

Mr. Barenboim also had a problem with taking money for building a parking lot some time in the future when nobody has any idea when, where or if that parking will ever be built.

"I think we're fooling ourselves in creating a fund that might not work this year, next year of the year after," Mr. Barenboim said.

Mr. Barenboim said he didn't have all the information he needed to make a decision on the off-street parking fund part of the proposal and the Board of Selectmen opted to delay voting on whether to support the entire amendment until its meeting on March 30.

Planners said Tuesday during the public hearing that they would bring the proposal to Town Meeting as it is, and they will have the option to amend it on the floor of the meeting if they need to.

Ms. Hill told selectmen Andover's downtown has more than 85,000 square feet of vacant business space right now, alluding that easing the parking requirements could help fill some of that space.

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, said the proposal answers a lot of the problems faced by businesses last fall and that Christine Estabrook, owner of Silverado Athletic Club in Park Street Village, would not have had to go through the months-long permitting process if these changes had been in place.

"Silverado wouldn't have had to go through the exercise," Mr. Stapczynski said.

"I think we're fooling ourselves in creating a fund that might not work this year, next year of the year after."

Jim Barenboim

"I think it's fantastic," Ms. Estabrook said Tuesday of the planners' proposal. "I'm very happy to see that they did act on this and that it's something that's important to them. I think they're headed in the right direction. It can be improved on, but they're trying to do something."

The town manager was not sure how the amendment might apply to the problems of Petro's Seafoods & Deli, on Post Office Avenue, which is faced with having a lack of adequate parking.

I'm not sure if it'll do anything for

"I think it's fantastic. I'm very happy to see that they did act on this and that it's something that's important to them. I think they're headed in the right direction. It can be improved on, but they're trying to do something."

Christine Estabrook

Petro's. But the parking fund might," Mr. Stapczynski said. "It is an option open to the applicant."

The Central Business District Committee, formed last year to study needs and find solutions to problems downtown, supports the amendment and will speak in favor of it at Town Meeting, according to Mr. O'Brien.

School board seeks additions to two schools could cost as much as $6.3 million.

The committee placed on the back burner its original first choice, the creation of a downtown elementary school at the former East Junior High building. That building is currently used for school administration offices and the Senior Center.

Newly appointed Chairwoman Susan Jenkins couldn't get three votes to support the downtown school option, which was her first choice. She and member Susan Dalton were the only two who voted in favor of the downtown school.

"I support the South and Sanborn plan when it comes to long-term operating cost" savings, said Mr. Huston.

After listening to a presentation on options from the subcommittee charged with finding alternatives to the downtown school, committee member Christopher Outwin said there would be too many disadvantages with pursuing the downtown school. Dr. Outwin said the disadvantages are that the committee doesn't have jurisdiction over the building. He said that to re-locate the Senior Center would be costly even if a new location could be found. And he believes that operating a fifth elementary school would be more expensive.

The School Committee will now lobby Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski to appoint a school building committee. The School Committee said it will redesign its $250,000 Town Meeting warrant article. That article was approved by the committee in the fall to pursue architectural designs for a now-scrapped plan to build a new 400-plus-pupil elementary school on Cross Street. The new article will seek funds to plan for the South and Sanborn additions and possibly improvements in the two schools. The article would need to be approved by voters at the April 13 Town Meeting.

According to the subcommittee, renovation of a downtown school and additions to the South and Sanborn schools would cost about the same. But the downtown school would cost more because the Senior Center would have to be moved and administration costs in a new school would add to the yearly operating budget.

The subcommittee considered buying portable classrooms for each school. The portables would cost about $150,000 each, but the subcommittee concluded that the portables would deteriorate faster than additions, were more expensive to maintain, and would cost more to insure.

Shawsheen news

In other business, the committee voted to keep the Shawsheen integrated primary program open for kindergarten through second-graders next year if enough students enroll.

Kindergarten registration is ongoing this week and next. Contact each school at 470-1700 to find out exact days and times.

The committee said it will keep the Shawsheen program running only if enough students enroll to make operating it economically feasible. If too few students enroll, the administration may consider other options for the school.

RECYCLING

Most countries are making attempts to recycle

By Virginia Cole

From various newspaper articles sent to me, here are more recycling efforts from all over the country.

This is a country where almost all are trying to recycle. The nearest to us is Providence, R.I. They are seriously considering what Andover Recycling has been talking about for a long time. Trash is to be collected only in bags costing from 50 cents to $2.50 each, depending on size and weight and the disposal cost. Large items, such as a couch, would have to be tagged accordingly, again as to size and weight and cost of disposal. The result of this method would be to lower the amount of trash collected and increase the amount recycled as recycled goods would be picked up free.

Seattle uses this method as do smaller communities in Pennsylvania, Michigan and New York. A smaller cost for trash disposal would lower property taxes.

Portland, Ore., has a "StyroCop." All restaurants and retail food vendors are prohibited from using plastic foam and so Lee Barrett walks his beat every night to make sure that everyone is obeying this law and no foam is going into landfills or incinerators. He is very passionate about his job, saying "to drink eight ounces of coffee for two minutes and then throw away the plastic cup where it will take up space forever is absurd".

Creativity in re-using materials is much prized in some places. Christmas brought out the best in many. Re-used wrapping paper and ribbon has long been practiced in my home and tags for gifts can be made from last year's Christmas cards. But others have used the comic pages (very colorful) for wrapping gifts as well as material scraps, if you are a sewer. Yarn leftovers can double for ribbon all year round. Boxes are kept from year to year and new members of the family are warned not to expect inside what the box says on the outside.

But what we are all really looking for is the couple in Pittsburg, Calif. The city has a mandatory garbage charge.

This couple came to the city council to claim an exemption. They stated they had no garbage. They explained they usually eat out and so have almost no paper products to throw away.

What they do have they toss in their woodburning stove along with dead tree branches. Yard clippings go to feed animals on their farm. They recycle their glass and aluminum.

"What about razor blades?" asked a suspicious councilman. The reply was "an electric razor." "And what about the ash in the stove?" Answer: "That's mixed into the soil of our garden."

The Senior Center at Whittier Court had a special visitor last week. The Andover Fire Department brought its mascot. Here, Deputy Chief Chuck Mur-nane introduces Mary Roman to Sparky, the fire-prevention talking dog.

She loves kids, animals early childhood education from Colby-Sawyer College in New Hampshire. She joined the MSPCA's education team in 1990 after a career as a learning disabilities teacher that was cut short by Proposition 2 1/2 cuts in the early '80s, and a stint at a Boston management company.

As one of seven members of the MSPCA's outreach education department, Ms. Schwartz will visit more than 1,000 schools this year. She visits three to four classes each day in schools within a 30-mile radius of the Methuen area, she said.

"I'm so lucky. I get to combine my background in education and my love of animals," she said.

"I'm also fortunate because I can arrange my own schedule and when I'm not teaching in the schools I can work out of my home, coordinating my school visits," said Ms. Schwartz.

Operation Outreach is part of the American Humane Education Association, which works in conjunction with the MSPCA and other humane societies nationwide. She used to teach four days each week and spend one day scheduling. But now, because of budget cuts, she does scheduling when she gets home after teaching.

The program's goal is to bring to children more awareness and respect for animals, said Judy Golden, director of the American Humane Education Society, which is headquartered in Boston.

"The philosophy is that if we can help these children learn more respect toward animals, they will grow up to be more empathetic adults towards all life," Ms. Golden said.

Each summer, school systems in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire receive information about the MSPCA's education program. The schools can then contact the MSPCA about scheduling Ms. Schwartz or one of the other outreach workers.

The kindergarten through grade-two programs are free and the third-through sixth-grade programs cost a $18 membership fee for each classroom.

Ms. Schwartz said the fees for the higher grades have been necessary because of tighter budgets. The fee includes membership buttons for the children and an MSPCA newsletter three times each year, as well as a lesson once a week for three weeks.

A new initiative begun this year by the American Humane Education Association is a program that combines literacy with learning about nature and animals. Story Tellers Inc., a small company out of Seattle, Wash., is helping provide classics such as Black Beauty and Beautiful Joe to participating classrooms. Corporate sponsors have provided money for schools in the Merrimack Valley.

The MSPCA outreach teachers never bring animals to classrooms during their visits. Ms. Schwartz said the children are always disappointed, but she reminds them that the animals would be frightened in a room with bright lights, dozens of little hands reaching out to pet them, and all the strange new smells.

"One of the first questions the children want to know is if I've brought in pets for them to see," said Ms. Schwartz. "I tell them a school is a place for children and there are places right for animals."

One of the ice-breakers Ms. Schwartz, often remembered by the younger children as "Mrs. Schwarzenegger," brings is a big photo of her own dog, Jackie, a 2-year-old lab-cross she adopted from the Methuen MSPCA. Ms. Schwartz asks them to bring in pictures of their pets to talk about in future classes, she said.

Each grade level receives an age-appropriate lesson, said Ms. Schwartz. When she visits kindergarten classes, she brings a puppet and tells the children a story about a dog named Sparky who gets lost. Ms. Schwartz asks the children how they would feel if they were a lost dog like Sparky.

First-graders get to see a slide show on pet care. The younger students' lessons usually run about 45 minutes, which is about as long as the children can pay attention to any subject, even if it is one they love, said Mr. Schwartz.

"I love the reaction from the kids," she said. "Some of them get so excited. The other day I was in a class and there was a little girl who had her hand raised for a really long time. All during my talk she kept waving her hand back and forth until I finally picked her."

"All she wanted to tell me was that her grandmother had a bunny. Nothing else," she said.

Second-graders see Ms. Schwartz once each week for two weeks. The program she uses with them is called "All Creatures Great and Small," which teaches them the difference between animals that are good pets, those that are better on farms, and those that will always be wild.

Many of the kids at this age want to know why keeping a frog or a salamander from their backyard isn't a good idea. Boys especially, she said, have questions about snakes, lizards and other non-traditional pets.

"I try to let them know that even if they are the best caretakers in the world, these are wild animals that belong in nature. I tell them that frogs and snakes have friends and families in the wild that they'd miss if they were taken away. They seem to understand this," she said.

That thought on appropriate pets is not only her personal opinion, but also that of the MSPCA.

According to the latest MSPCA figures, there are 450 cats and 350 dogs born every hour in this country. About 42,000 of these animals are taken in by the MSPCA's eight shelters in the state.

The outreach educators talk to children about the importance of spaying or neutering their pets if their family has decided it doesn't want or can't care for more than one pet.

"One day I was in a class and we were talking about this subject and one little boy told me his mother had been spayed. There are always little things like that that make my day," she laughed.

Ms. Schwartz said she takes her job home with her. She always has a special interest in animals, whether it is a pooch out for a walk with its master or a puppy running loose in the road.

"There was this little puppy running in the road stopping traffic. I caught up with it, but couldn't see a soul around that might have been its master, so I went around the neighborhood knocking on doors until I found the puppy's home," she said.

Fourth-graders get a few lessons on cats, including fact and fiction. Ms. Schwartz talks about how people's attitudes about cats have changed through history, including their revered place in Egyptian culture, to cats persecuted in the Middle Ages, when they were considered evil and to be in cahoots with witches.

She said many of the students she talks with have watched special nature programs on TV.

"It's amazing. Kids learn a ton from these shows. One student explained to the whole class how it is the female lion that hunts for the pride, not the male lion. All the children were impressed, but not as much as I was," she said.

Fifth-graders learn about endangered species and what many countries are doing to help save these animals. Ms. Schwartz will visit the older grades once a week for three weeks.

In addition to school programs, Ms. Schwartz also visits civic groups and does other speaking engagements, such as at veterinary schools.

Children remember her. Sometimes she finds that her job has given her mini-celebrity status. There are times she is downtown or at the supermarket and a child will yell, "Hello Mrs. Schwarzenegger. Where is Arnold?" Or there will be a small child pulling on her coat, wanting to introduce Ms. Schwartz to her parents as the "YMCA lady."

Municipal Maintenance is slipping away

William Jr., are a cousin, father and son.

Roger Ramsey was bumped to the Highway Department after the layoffs.

John Crowley, a part-time custodian, was also laid off in 1991.

Robert Kennedy Jr. is a part-time security worker who checks buildings on weekends and holidays to be sure heating and plumbing systems are working and to check for breaks and vandalism. John Murphy retired from Building Maintenance in June.

Robert Wrzeszcz, a part-time maintenance worker, left in 1991. Michael Murnane washes cars part-time at the police department.

About Municipal Maintenance

The Municipal Maintenance Department completed $6,351,087 worth of major projects in the schools from 1983 to 1992. This figure does not include preventive maintenance, minor projects or day-to-day repairs and maintenance. It also does not include work done in other town buildings.

Additional services provided by the Municipal Maintenance Department include:

- Maintenance of 13 sets of traffic lights, five sets of school flashing lights, four sets of flashing stop lights and 175 antique street lights.
- Rentals of town-owned buildings and fields.
- Supervision of town switchboard operators/receptionists.
- Banner and wreath hanging at the library and old town hall.
- Surplus food delivery to the Senior Center.
- Leaf composting at Bald Hill.
- Curbside chipping of 36 tons of Christmas trees.
- Installation and maintenance of playground equipment.
- Construction of wheelchair ramps for schools.

Listen to these kids

Among several reasons for publishing a page in the Townsman written by Andover High School students is the quest to understand the needs of people that age and to listen to them.

So it is with that in mind that we invite the community to read pages 19 and 20 in today's Townsman. The subject of Andover High School page is weekends and the message is clear: Students feel set aside here, like they are not important because adults have what they need in Andover, and teen-agers do not.

What the teens say they need is something to do on the weekends.

"There should be a place where everyone can go and hang out," said Kelly Young, when Sheri Culver interviewed the junior.

Writer Erik Greenstein isn't mincing words: "Students in Andover feel that the only way to have fun is to go to someone's house, get as drunk as possible, trash it and then leave the house, leaving the owner to clean it up. They think that's fun."

One AHS student even complains that the police break up a party at 10 p.m. and "after I have had a few too many, they would want us to get into our cars and drive away."

The students suggest a drop-in center as a solution. Even though they may be naive about buying a building for that purpose, the community must have some area, some large room or set of rooms that could serve as a weekend drop-in center.

The kids say they would hang out there, play pool, listen to music and stay off the streets. Drop-in centers are not new ideas, cities and town have had them for years. We suggest Andover residents, officials and parents talk with the students, and help them find a solution to partying, drinking and drugging.

The teens have expressed the problem and offered part of the solution. Now it's the adults turn to listen and to act.

When officials at St. Robert's Country Day School decided to celebrate the start of spring, they had no idea that it would be snowing. On a 1-10 scale, it was a 3 week

By Perry Colmore Catlin

Last week was not a good one for me. At one point, I thought I was going to die; at another, I was afraid I wouldn't. In addition, as if I needed more, I blew part of my son's spring vacation from college.

First, the I-was-going-to-die part. Most of us who live in New England have a similar story. I was driving last Thursday back to Andover from Ipswich in my car, which isn't great in snow. Ipswich roads were in much worse shape than Andover's. On a back street, Topsfield Road, going about 35 miles an hour, I lost control of the car. I think I hit a patch of black ice. The car began to spin around. I've been driving in snow for years and feel pretty confident about it, but this time I tried to get myself out of the spin and I immediately knew there wasn't anything I could do. The car wasn't responding - at all. A woman in some kind of small, black car was headed straight for me.

I thought I was going to die. Wouldn't you think I'd choose such a time to say, "Save me, Jesus?" or how about, "I love my kids." No. I said - and it was out loud - "I'm dead meat."

Anyway, as you can see, I am not dead. The savvy woman steered off the road, into the bushes and our cars came within two feet of crashing. Both our cars spun around 350 degrees. She ended up in the bushes on my side of the road and I ended up in the bushes, too, both of us facing the opposite direction in which we were traveling. I burst into tears.

Then two days later, Saturday, I was back in Ipswich for an errand, and all of a sudden I was driving in a flash snow storm, a white out, and would you believe, once again I was on Topsfield Road. I went 22 miles an hour and made it through that storm.

Now for the I-was-afraid-I-wouldn't-die story. That was a week ago last Sunday, four days before the near crash in the car. I was hit at 4 p.m. with a virus. I was sick to my stomach until 11:30 p.m. When I became light-headed and so weak I thought I would pass out, I called my doctor, who said get to the emergency room. So my son drove me to Holy Family, where we stayed until 4:30 a.m. My body was so dehydrated that I took in two IV's. The interesting thing is that I slept some in the hospital, then slept about two hours after getting home, and then I felt well enough to go to work at about 9 a.m. I was exhausted by 5:30 that afternoon, but pretty nearly recovered.

My doctor later explained that if I hadn't had the IV's, it would have taken three or four days to recover, to get my electrolytes back to their normal level. A few days later, when my son began to show some of the same symptoms, he started - on doctor's orders - on store-bought drinks that help bring back a person's electrolytes, and he wasn't nearly sick as I.

Next chapter in this ugly week: When my son arrived home from college, he and I decided we'd buy tickets to hear Victor Borge at Lynn City Hall Saturday. After four days of getting only a busy signal from the ticket agent, we finally got through and ordered two expensive tickets and put them on my credit card. Saturday afternoon, I realized the tickets hadn't arrived by mail, as the agent had promised they would.

So I phoned the agent and delivered an angry message.

"You say it's the Victor Borge concert in Lynn?" the patient woman agent checked with me.

"Yes," I said, "and it's tonight, in Shawsheen parents defend the facility

Editor, Townsmen:

Dear Dr. McQuillan:

During the past few months a number of citizens in the town of Andover have made negative remarks about the Shawsheen School. It has been said that Shawsheen "is unfit to operate as a school, that it does not offer a pleasant, inviting environment and that it cannot compete on any level with the rest of Andover's public schools."

We as parents of children at Shawsheen vehemently disagree with these statements. These comments have focused mainly on the facility and not on the educational activities in the school. This letter is written to highlight the many positive aspects of the school and to refute some of those negative comments.

The integrated primary at Shawsheen offers an excellent educational program designed to meet the developmental needs of young children ages 5 to 8. A positive educational experience in the early years is critical to the establishment of strong learning patterns, which are the basis for future academic success. As parents of children at Shawsheen, we are thankful that our boys and girls have had the opportunity to participate in a program dedicated to the highest educational standards.

The small overall size of the school and the team approach to learning allow the teachers to offer an interdisciplinary thematic approach to education which ties together lessons in subject areas, activities in art, music and physical education. An integrated curriculum is the result of this literature based approach.

The tremendous efforts made by the entire staff in every area more than offset any and all obstacles presented by the age of the building. The teachers are often observed working extra hours on special projects designed to deliver the best education possible to the children. The small size of the school allows the staff to provide individualized attention for all the children. The entire staff seems to know each and every child by name. When parents drop their children off at school, the teachers greet each child by name, with a warm smile and often a hug. The dedication and caring of the staff is exceptional. Our children are learning one of the most important lessons of early life, a basic confidence in their teachers.

The overall atmosphere at Shawsheen can best be described as warm and friendly, like that of an extended family. The kindergarten, first grade and pre-kindergarten classrooms are bright and sunny, providing a cheerful and inviting environment. There is a strong sense of community at Shawsheen with staff and parents working together to provide unique educational opportunities for the children.

Last December, parents and staff presented a special educational program in the activity center entitled a "Celebration of Light and Giving." The program explored celebrations of different cultures around the world which occur during the winter solstice. This program required a major commitment of time and effort from both parents and staff. More than 60 parents volunteered and worked closely with the staff to ensure its success. The excitement of the children as they formed informal groups, selected their own activities and moved through the hands-on learning stations was evident.

In closing, we would like to express appreciation and thanks to all members of the staff and administration who have provided us with the opportunity to participate in this exceptional program at the Shawsheen School. We understand that throughout the Andover Public School System there are wonderful opportunities for children and we support all of those efforts. We hope that throughout the community we can get the support we need to ensure the continued innovative school of choice for parents of young children in Andover. It is a program we are very proud of: a curriculum that maintains excellence in education in our town.

West parents encouraged by officials' empathy

Editor, Townsmen:

On behalf of the parents of NEWMS (a New Environment for West Middle School), we would like to express our thanks to those members of the community, parents, town officials, school officials and the Andover Townsman who have supported our efforts to improve the conditions at West Middle School.

We are encouraged by the empathy demonstrated by elected and appointed town officials who have actively responded to the building condition complaints voiced by the parents of West Middle School. We hope that a plan can be set in place to correct the situation at the joint meeting between the Board of Selectman, School Committee and Finance Committee Thursday evening, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the School Committee meeting room on the second floor of the Senior Citizens Center.

We urge parents and concerned citizens to attend this critical meeting on West Middle School to voice their concern on correcting the situation now.

Many parents have asked what can they do to help, well the time to act is now. We need to show unified support to these elected and appointed officials.

We need to urge officials to put a plan in place to:

1. Define and prioritize the problem areas at West Middle School.
2. Determine the cost to correct each area in such a way that the situation is not just "patched" but properly corrected in a cost efficient manner with emphasis on maintenance-free materials and smart purchasing.
3. Recommend the financial approaches to get the job done this year and demonstrate their support to this financial solution publicly.

1. Correct the problems in an efficient, prudent and expeditious manner.

NEWMS urges our town officials to do the job right and do it right the first time. This is an opportunity that our community must seize to correct the building conditions at West Middle School - let us all work together towards this common goal. Let us be able to say, "Town Government can be effective."

Girls' hoop team says thanks

Editor, Townsmen:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who supported the Andover High School girls' basketball team this past season. We enjoyed a very successful season, the best in the program's history, at 19-4. We could not have done it without all of the support we received.

First, to the girls: Stephanie Kupa, Melissa McNamara, Lindsey Sweeney, Kerry Hagerty, Amy Cassidy, Tara Griffin, Marcia Gemmell, Erinne Sullivan and Carrie Green. If it wasn't for your hard work and dedication, we would not have made it as far as we did. You girls are great players and great people. Best of luck in the future.

Thank you to Coach George Sullivan, Coach Debbie Deacon and also to Al Richards, Jay Darrin and Dave Gangi, who were all willing to dedicate their spare time to improving our team. We appreciate all the work you have done for us.

We would also like to thank the Andover high boys' basketball team, with whom we traveled this year. Your support was great and we had a lot of fun. You guys are terrific! Congratulations on a super season.

Finally, to all our families who have supported us from day one. Through big wins and tough losses, you have always been there with encouragement. For your support, we cannot thank you enough.

And to all those who ever came to a girls' basketball game, thanks.

Pesticides are a problem

Editor, Townsmen:

I feel that one of our biggest problems is the use of pesticides. Pesticides are poisons used to kill or control pests. Some pesticides help increase crop yields or prolong the storage of goods. Others are just used to make things look pleasing to the eye.

I feel that many people overlook the fact that pesticides do more than just kill unwanted pests. They destroy harmless insects that could serve as natural pest controllers. Pesticides are also very harmful to the human body. They have been known to cause cancer, nerve disorders, birth defects and genetic disorders.

During World War II, pesticides were used frequently with little knowledge or regard to health or environmental hazards. Later, when the damage was discovered, some pesticides such as DDT were banned. The damage that DDT caused is irreversible and continues to move up the food chain from plant to animal and the eventually to the human body. DDT has also been detected in animals from areas like the Antarctic, where it was never sprayed. This shows the widespread effect that these harmful chemicals cause.

However, although the government and other organizations know of this, they still continue to use over two and a half billion pounds of pesticides each year. They use different kinds of pesticides on agricultural crops, in forests, on ponds and lakes, in parks, on lawns and in homes. The result of this widespread use of these harmful chemicals contaminates our air, our drinking water and our food. Also, because of inadequate testing, no one knows exactly how much damage pesticides are doing to our food. In 1987, 50 percent of the fruit and 40 percent of the vegetables were found to have pesticide residues.

Well, anyway, my point is that we must make changes in what we eat and become aware of this problem. We as citizens must pressure our government to make changes. In order to do this, we should show our concerns by writing letters to: Environmental Protection Agency, 401 M St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460; Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 5600 Fisher Lane, Rockville, Md. 20857; U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510; U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Besides these places there are many others that we could write to to show that we want the pesticides to be thoroughly tested or reduced in use.

Also, it is suggested that we should do certain things as washing and/or peeling fruits and vegetables to remove the pesticide residues. Growing your own produce or buying organically-grown fruits and vegetables will help. By doing this you can eat pesticide-free food and send a message to your supermarket and growers that pesticides are not acceptable.

Also, you should remember to be aware of perfect looking food for the reason that pesticides were probably used to enhance their appearance. Finally, remember that imported food often contains more pesticides than domestically-grown produce. These foods may contain pesticides that were banned from the U.S.

I am not saying that we should get rid of all the pesticides. What I am saying is that we should reduce the use of pesticides and make the food that we eat more healthy. This is a big issue that can harm us all, especially the future generations, and thus, we should start doing something about it now.

Here is some mammogram information . . .

Editor, Townsmen:

As a result of several recent reports about breast cancer and mammography in the national news media, the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division has received more than 3,000 inquiries about breast cancer detection in the last two weeks. Most callers want to know which mammography facilities in their area are accredited by the American College of Radiology. The American Cancer Society is frequently cited as a local resource, providing this information to the public via a toll-free telephone number.

It has come to our attention that on at least three occasions, we inadvertently omitted Valley Radiology, Inc., located at 140 Haverhill St. in Andover, from the list of accredited mammography facilities. I wish to state for the record that Valley Radiology, Inc. is indeed accredited by the American College of Radiology.

To gain accreditation, Radiology Valley, Inc. met the rigorous standards of the American College of Radiology. The radiological staff of Valley Radiology, Inc. are certified by the American Board of Radiology, the machinery is dedicated to mammography and the staff technicians are licensed by the American Registry of Radiological Technologists to operate mammography equipment.

We apologize for any inconvenience this error has caused Valley Radiology, Inc., its director, Michael Kinsella, M.D., or their patients. We have increased our quality control efforts, and assure your readers that the staff and volunteers of the American Cancer Society will continue to do their best to provide the public with current, accurate information about all aspects of cancer.

It's time to revolt over taxes

(Editor's note: In the following letter, the writer, who is an auxiliary policeman for Andover, is referring to a letter he received dated March 13 from Andover's personnel director, advising him that there is a new federal law that says all part-time, seasonal and temporary employees who do not participate in the municipal retirement program or the Massachusetts Teachers Retirement Program must have deducted from their earnings a contribution toward their retirement plan and that it will be 7.5 percent of gross pay.)

Editor, Townsmen:

To the town manager:

I am totally astounded by the letter announcing another grab at our income. Self-employed individuals now pay 5 percent to the state, 14 percent to FICA et al., 28 percent to the IRS and now a mandatory 7.5 percent to this unknown and uncontrollable cash management fund.

What justification is there for working when 54.5 percent goes before we can feed ourselves or pay town tax, excise, sales tax, etc.? What is the reward in shouldering a town tax that has increased over 30 percent while real gross income has dropped and discretionary income has disappeared?

Enough is enough. It is time to come out in the daylight of the real world away from protected salaries and guaranteed jobs, where you are buffered from this.

At minimum we must have the right to know the name of the plan trustee and administrator, the investment institution disclosure including its rating, the possible rate of return, the correct title of the federal law, alternative investment vehicles and all other rules.

While we can assume that the intention of the law is for our benefit, it is disgusting to see yet another bureaucratic pork barrel being created to control our money without our control. This is taxation without representation of the worst form. Another tea party is coming.

COOKING

Don't underestimate a can of tuna fish (for Lent)

By Maria Moskos

It's Friday and Lent and the only fish in the house is canned tuna. Don't panic. For years you thought the only thing you could do with a can of tuna was add mayo and celery for a tuna salad sandwich or cooked noodles and a creamed sauce for a casserole.

Wrong!

Don't underestimate the potential of what can be transformed into a delectable meal by treating tuna in a creative, contemporary manner. Here are a few ideas for that fish usually thought of as lowly but found on most pantry shelves because of its convenience and low cost. Nutritionally, tuna ranks high because it is low in fat and salt, high in protein and available water-packed.

Artichoke and tomato fettucini with tuna

- 4 oz. imported black olives, sliced
- 4 oz. green Spanish olives, sliced
- 1/4 cup capers, rinsed and drained
- 2, 7 1/2 oz. cans tuna in olive oil
- 1 oz. can anchovy fillets, drained and chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, pressed
- 1 ripe tomato, seeded and chopped
- 1/2 cup fresh flat-leaf parsley, chopped
- 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 2 tbsp. white vermouth
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 3/4 lb. artichoke fettucini

3/4 lb. tomato fettucini

Combine first eight ingredients in a bowl. Whisk lemon juice and vermouth with olive oil in separate bowl.

Cook fettucini in boiling salted water until cooked al dente. Drain, toss with olive oil mixture, then add the other eight ingredients and toss lightly. Serve hot or cold garnished with a tomato rose in the center of a sliced artichoke heart forming the rose's leaves. Serves six.

South of the border tuna chowder

- 3 tbsp. butter
 - 3 jalapeno peppers, seeded, deveined and cut into strips
 - 1/2 tsp. ground cumin
 - 1/2 tsp. coriander
 - 2 tomatoes, peeled and seeded
 - 1/2 large onion
 - 4 cups fresh or frozen corn kernels (thawed)
 - 2 cups milk
 - 1 1/2 cup clam broth
 - 2 medium red potatoes, diced
 - 4 tbsp. grated Monterey Jack cheese
 - 2, 7 1/2 oz. cans water-packed white tuna
 - 2 carrots, peeled and shredded
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 1/2 cup chopped fresh coriander for garnish
- Melt butter and saute jalapenos over low heat for about three minutes. Add cumin and coriander and stir. Puree one tomato in a processor with the onion and add to jalapenos. Cook five minutes.

Puree three cups corn kernels with milk and add with the clam broth to tomato-jalapeno mixture. Bring to a boil. Add potatoes and simmer, covered, about eight minutes. Add cheese, tuna, carrots and remaining tomato and corn. Cook for about four to five minutes. Add salt and pepper. Sprinkle with coriander and serve with blue corn chips. Serves six.

Working with 1,000 square feet of house space

North Andover resident Shirley Roberts uses imagination to turn a small house into a wonderful place to live

By Mary Katis

Shirley Roberts lived in the Salem Marblehead area for 15 years and decided to move back to North Andover. She knew the area because she lived there as a young girl. She found a small house with only 1,000 square feet of living space.

The white-frame two-story house with green shutters is just what she was looking for. The first floor has three rooms: a living room, dinette and a kitchen. Two bedrooms and bath are on the second.

In August, 1990, she purchased the house for approximately $125,000. She chose a house rather than a condominium for better re-sale value. She also was attracted by the small yard and a place to plant flowers. She knew what improvements would be necessary for the house because she spent the last five years remodeling a three-family house in Salem.

Friends and contractors from Salem helped her with electrical, plumbing, and ceiling repairs. They also helped her strip walls and pull up carpets. She learned how to redecorate with each new project. Ms. Roberts had to be creative because of the high cost of home repairs.

"I did the floors first and then worked on the walls," she said.

The North Andover house needed many improvements. One project was choosing a fence for the front yard. After pricing fences, she decided to design it and asked a friend to help build it. The biggest project was adding a deck to the back of the house.

Ms. Roberts worked with Kevin Murphy, an independent contractor. One can tell from looking at the house and deck that she has a wonderful sense of balance and proportion. Her deck design is unlike a traditional one. Her deck has two levels - one leads from the dinette, creating an eating area, and the other, lower area, serves as space for entertaining.

"The door opens to the deck and gives much more space."

Ms. Roberts studied art and education at Salem State College.

After graduating, she worked in Salem for the Peabody Museum and for Ronald Bourgeault, an antiques dealer. An avid collector, she has decorated her home with antiques, treasures from Europe and family keepsakes.

Polished wood floors set the stage for a Sheraton sofa, which was purchased at auction, and a heavily carved side chair from the Searles estate. The overall decor is a blend of contemporary and period pieces. A Chinese corner chair with mother-of-pearl inlay complements an oval glass and brass coffee table. The oak dinette table and bow chairs blend with the adjoining room.

Wide window moldings and glass door knobs reflect the 1942 era. A single man built this house for himself. He was a construction worker and used the best materials available at the time.

"I looked at the living room windows for at least a year before deciding what to do with curtains," said Ms. Roberts.

She placed the curtain rods inside the window frames. This allows the wide decorative molding to be exposed. Curtains are extended to full length for privacy and then shortened each day to create a balloon effect. A Shumacker print in soft pastel allows the room to be bright and open.

The Pullman-style kitchen has space for all the necessary appliances. Counters are finished with easy-care material and cabinets are large enough for her needs. Instead of curtains, wallpaper cut-outs are pasted on the window frame and sill. Dry flower wreaths and natural plants accent this room and all the rooms in the house.

"I made most of the decorations," she said.

Upstairs, one bedroom is used for guests and a television area. Ms. Roberts made by hand twist swag curtains for this room. The swag is made with a straight piece of fabric (plain on one side and a print on the other). The cloth is twisted once with a slip pocket on the top and bottom. Half shutters were installed for privacy and to allow light and ventilation. An Indian Aubusson carpet is the color denominator for this narrow space.

The larger bedroom is decorated with wicker furniture and select pieces from flea markets, antique shops and auctions. Ms. Roberts considers buying antiques to be cost effective.

This North Andover house has only 1,000 square feet in it, but it is beautifully made over.

Shirley Roberts shows the use of fabrics in pillows, curtains and the bedspread in the larger of the two bedrooms in the house.

"New furniture depreciates once it leaves the store, but antiques grow in value," she claims.

All the furniture and house improvements were purchased for pleasure but also with cost return in mind.

The tiniest room in the house is the bathroom. The vanity has been replaced. Next to be installed are light fixtures. Plans to refinish the walls with ceramic tiles and improve the shower are on her priority lists. Next on the agenda are ideas for using the garage as an office. She is a part-time court investigator for the Lawrence District Court.

She needs a place to write reports and store file cabinets. She is also employed by Toscano and Ardito accounting firm in North Andover.

The little house on Park Street will be colorful this spring and summer. Tulips, daffodils and crocus bulbs have been planted. These flowers aren't difficult to maintain and continue flowering year after year. The front yard fence will have line flowers consisting of annuals. Perennials will bloom there, too.

The rear of the house and deck area will have shade plants such as hosta and lily of the valley. The lot is listed as having 5,000 square feet.

Ms. Roberts is excited to be home, back in North Andover. She has spent hours improving her property. More remodeling will come with the seasons.

Former resident remembered for love of family and baseball

By Rick Harrison

We used to kid around and wonder who would be happier, father or son, if Rick Saggese Jr. ended up playing professional baseball. Or who would take it harder if he didn't.

Rich Saggese would laugh when we said it. Now we will never know.

When I learned last Thursday that Rich Saggese had been struck in the temple with a baseball, and was fighting for his life, my initial reactions were sadness and disbelief.

My first thought after reading of his death the following day was to call the family in Naples, Fla. But I wasn't sure what I would say. How could I offer words of comfort? Nothing seems appropriate at times like this.

The report said the former Andover resident was hit by the last pitch to the last batter. What are the odds against that? I remember three winters ago when Rich rolled his white Toyota truck over on icy roads and escaped virtually without a scratch.

I thought of dozens of baseballs that had whistled past my ear in 20 years of pitching batting practice, and line drives I had ducked by reflex at the last instant to escape such a blow myself.

In the two brief years I knew the man I came to respect him and admire the mutual devotion between Rich and his son.

Having lost my own father when I was young I can imagine the devastation his wife Cecile, daughter Tammy and Rick Jr. are feeling and will continue to feel for a long time.

I can't say Rich and I were close friends, but we were more than acquaintances after he spent two summers helping Dan Grams and myself coach a pony league baseball team in town.

During that time Rich talked often about his family.

There was unquestionably a special bond between he and his son. Everyone saw it. He also spoke of his wife and daughter often.

Most people only saw Rich in tandem with his son. Side by side and inseparable. Calling each other "buddy" and meaning it.

But it was crystal clear this intense man was a devoted family man who loved his wife and two children deeply.

Before I knew Rich I followed young Ricky's exploits with the Andover National Little League All-Stars during their memorable summer of 1988.

My interest in Ricky was heightened because the following year he would be eligible to play in the pony league. It was clear with all the dramatic homeruns and well-pitched games that Ricky was something special on the baseball diamond.

In my capacity as a reporter for the Andover Townsman I was sent to Williamsport, Penn. to cover the team in the Little League World Series.

There I had my first contact with Rich Sr.

He and Ricky were walking slowly back towards the bunkhouse area after a team from Texas had ended Andover's world title dream.

It was not an uncommon picture that week, any father walking with his arm around his son's shoulders. Ricky's head was bowed slightly before his dad said something that brought a smile.

I had been "warned" ahead of time about Rich Sr.

I rarely saw him smile in Williamsport but came to find out later he had a genuine warmth and excellent sense of humor.

I was told by several coaches and parents, however, that Rich Saggese was your stereotypical Little League father multiplied 100 times. He was too involved and he was going to suffocate young Ricky's appreciation for the game of baseball.

Bettencourt to coach baseball at UNH

The University of New Hampshire has tabbed its former star catcher to head up its baseball program.

Current Andover High coach Dave Bettencourt, who took the Golden Warriors as far as they could go last spring and is currently prepping the 1992 squad for a possible repeat performance, replaces retiring Ted Conner at the UNH helm next spring.

Bettencourt, 38, is a resident of Salem, N.H. and a science teacher at the Doherty Middle School.

He succeeded Bill Vickers as Andover High baseball coach in 1987 and, after a 10-10 opening season, has produced four consecutive winning records and a flashy overall mark of 88-27.

Last year Andover won its final 22 games in succession, finishing 25-1 overall en route to its first-ever State Division 1 title. The Warriors were also Merrimack Valley Conference Large School, Eastern Mass. North Sectional, Lawrence Invitational Tournament and Ted Boudreau Memorial Tournament finalists.

Bettencourt has served as a scout for the Texas Rangers, New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds.

He was an assistant baseball coach at the University of Lowell in 1981-82 and head coach at Central Catholic for three years.

He was also an assistant football coach at AHS for several seasons.

Bettencourt, whose named had been linked to both the UNH and Peabody High jobs several times in the past, was captain of the 1975 and '76 UNH baseball teams.

He had his best collegiate season in 1974 when he batted .395 with two home runs and 41 RBI.

Bettencourt will succeed his own college coach, Conner, who at age 60 decided to step down after 25 years at the Wildcats' helm.

Conner has 340 career wins, a UNH record, and the highlights of his tenure include five 20-win seasons, eight straight winning campaigns (1979-86), two ECAC Tournament qualifications and one NCAA Tournament appearance.

Gymnasts are as diverse as fire, ice

By Rick Harrison

In many ways they are as different as fire and ice, but when they step into the gymnastics arena Andover High seniors Kasie Kearins and Tania Pierce have one important thing in common.

Both Tania and Kasie are talented performers.

It takes athletic ability, mental preparedness, courage, concentration and competitiveness to be a top-flight gymnast.

It also doesn't hurt that both Kasie and Tania are easy on the eye.

"They're two different people, for sure," said Coach Julie Curtis.

"Kasie is a perfectionist. She wants to do well every time, and if a routine gets messed up it's a big thing to her. She's a self-motivated and intense competitor. She's mature and very popular. Kasie was more relaxed this year but still got stressed at times."

"Tania is more laid back," noted Coach Curtis. "She doesn't approach it as seriously. She's more of a kiddo. Tania can go for a week without working on a routine, get up and still do well. She's fearless. She'll try anything. I never had to spoil Tania in any event, and the degree of difficulty in her routines rose dramatically this year."

"I think Tania really loves the sport. She's been around it her whole life and has been influenced by her mother (a former coach and judge)."

"Kasie is more athletic and Tania is tougher mentally," offered Coach Curtis. "If they both fell off the beam, Kasie would be more concerned with

Synchronized swimmers hold fund-raiser this weekend

The Andover/North Andover YMCA synchronized swim team is putting the finishing touches on its annual fund-raiser swim show. Show times are Saturday, March 28, at 3 and 5 p.m. and Sunday, March 29, at 1 and 3 p.m.

The ANA YMCA Synchroners will perform original numbers, many of them written by team members, which will be used in upcoming competitions.

This year's performance is called "Wet 'N' Wild."

Tickets are on sale at the YMCA front desk or may be purchased the day of the performance. Adults are $3.50, children under 12 years and senior citizens $2.50.

Former resident remembered

Conversely, I think he heightened Ricky's interest and helped nurture his talents.

I approached the two that day and asked if I could talk to Rick for the newspaper.

Rich Sr., who as far as I know had never seen me before, sized me up and turned to his son.

"OK, Rick?"

Rich nodded.

"OK, but don't be too long because we just lost a tough game," said Rich.

"Uh-oh," I remember thinking. "What's this 'we' stuff. I didn't see you out in the field. Maybe this guy does have everything out of proportion."

Rich left us alone but didn't wander far off.

I misinterpreted Rich's words and actions at that time.

Although there was an obvious effort to over protect, I never saw Rich pressure his son.

Perhaps those who thought Rich was re-living his life through his son may have been jealous that their own filial relationship wasn't as solid.

I have not seen Ricky Saggese in 19 months. I don't know if he is still ahead of his peers in baseball ability. I suspect he is.

The fact his high school team played the night after Rich's death, with Ricky starting in right field, doesn't surprise me.

It feels right.

After Williamsport the next time I saw the Saggese was at pony league tryouts the following spring.

Advice continued from those who didn't know better. Pick the son and you pick the father.

I kept an open mind, although at the time I must admit it was because I wanted to win and I wanted Ricky on my team.

With some anticipation I drafted Ricky, although Rich had not uttered a single word to me pro or con during the tryouts.

I never regretted the choice.

Shortly after the draft Rich Saggese and I sat down over a cup of coffee and I haven't forgotten what he told me.

"I know what you've heard and I can't change the way some people think. I want what's best for my son. I always have and I always will. But I will never do anything that hurts your team."

Simple and straight-forward. Rich was always honest with me and I appreciated that. I believed him then and I'm glad I did.

He offered his services as a coach. I had expected that.

He also offered his home as a place to have meetings. He offered his batting cage for any player who wanted to come over for extra hitting. He coached third base. He ran practices when I was out of town or working.

He hit his son a few extra fungoes but I would have been surprised if he didn't.

As he felt more at ease with us Rich befriended several players whose fathers were not often around for games or practices.

His pride for his son was evident and his enthusiasm was contagious.

Sometimes it was hard to distinguish between the kids and the adult.

What started as a tentative association among myself, Coach Grams, the players and Rich grew to be more. It took time but it happened. There were a few rough spots. Everyone has those.

My only "regret" about having Rich as a coach is that I didn't get to know young Ricky better. He was basically quiet and I never pushed it.

I vividly recall when Ricky went to a baseball camp in Florida for one week during his 14-year old season. Rich walked around in a fog for several days.

I was not happy to see the Saggese family move to Florida. Part of that feeling was the realization we were losing an excellent player, although hot weather and the opportunity to play 12 months are quite a temptation.

I also was sad to see Rich Saggese leave.

Before he went we made a dozen dinner dates that were never kept because of schedule conflicts.

We exchanged several phone calls after they moved. Ricky was getting an award at our team banquet two months later, and we tried unsuccessfully to arrange it so father and son could fly back for the event.

The Saggese sent me a Christmas card that year, with a picture of the family sitting by the pool.

Ironically I had planned to do a story on Ricky this spring updating his progress in Florida.

After that Christmas I never spoke to Rich Saggese again.

"I'll call him next week," I said to myself a hundred times.

I envy Rich Saggese, his family life and his special union with his son. He had in 44 years what many of us couldn't achieve if we lived to be 1,000.

I will miss Rich Saggese.

Fourth-grader is top swimmer in N.E.

Richard Sheldon, 10, of the Haverhill YMCA swim team, is the top 9- to 10-year-old male swimmer in New England. Competing in the 10-and under age group championships in Cape Elizabeth, Maine, Richard won the 9-10 Male High Point award. He placed first in the 200 yard individual medley; second in the 200-yard free, 100 yard IM and 100 yard back; third in the 100 fly and 50 free; fourth in the 100 free and 50 back; and fifth in the 50 fly. He also was on the first place relay teams in the male 9-10 200-yard free relay and 200 yard medley relay.

Richard, son of David and Diane Sheldon of Cross Street, is in the fourth grade at West Elementary. His first and second place finishes qualified him for the Eastern Zone swimming championships in Princeton, N.J. Richard will also compete in the YWCA National Junior championships in Canton, Ohio, in April.

Also swimming for HYST from Andover were Justin Games, 10, son of Donna and Steve Games of Gavin Circle; Sarah Ferranti, 9, daughter of Bill and Carol Ferranti of Rattlesnake Hill; Kerryn O'Connor, 9, daughter of Ed and Jonalyn O'Connor of Deerfield Way; and Megan Hayes, 10, daughter of Tim and Valerie Hayes of Woodhaven Drive.

Justin was on the 9-10 male 200 yard free relay team which placed first. Sarah, Megan and Kerryn were on the 9-10 female relay teams which placed sixth in the 400 free relay and in the 200 medley relay, and ninth in the 200 free relay.

HYST, coached by Carlton Cronin, competed against 57 U.S. swimming teams from throughout New England and placed third in the girls' team standings, second in the boys' team standings, and second in the combined standings, just two points out of first place.

Brother and sister lead Pirates to sixth place

Diana and Matt Liberty led their Merrimack Valley Pirate teammates to a sixth-place finish in the New England Senior swimming championships last weekend at Harvard's Blodgett Pool.

The sister and brother qualified to compete in the National Junior Olympics-East championship meet later this month in Nashville.

Diana qualified in the 1,650-yard freestyle where she placed fifth. She was fourth in the 1,000 free, fifth in the 500 free and 15th in the 200-yard butterfly.

Matt made JO cuts in the 400-yard individual medley, a fifth-place finish, the 1,650 free, sixth place, and the 200 fly, seventh place. He also finished ninth in the 1,000 free and 12th in the 500 free.

Y accepts registrations for Itty Bitty Baseball League

The Merrimack Valley YMCA, Lawrence branch, is accepting registrations for its Itty Bitty Baseball League. This program is open to boys and girls ages 5 through 9 (birthday May 1, 1992, or before).

Teams are formed according to age, which means 5-year-olds play with 5-year-olds, 6-year-olds with 6-year-olds, etc. Cushioned balls are used with beginners to develop confidence. Each session is divided into a practice and a game. All practice and games sessions begin at 10:30 a.m. and run through noon on Saturdays at Frost School Field (behind the school), South Lawrence.

The entire family is invited to enjoy special events which take place every year. There will be a photo day, parent/child games, an ice cream party and an award day. Every child receives a trophy at the end of the season.

The fee is $15 for YMCA members and $35 for non-members.

The program begins April 25 and ends June 27. Registration is open through April 22, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Merrimack Valley YMCA, Lawrence Branch, 40 Lawrence St. For more information, contact Craig Wilson at the YMCA.

her own feelings while it would matter more to Tania that other people saw her fall."

Tania was a varsity gymnast for four years. Kasie joined the team as a sophomore, and in the three seasons the pair were together Andover went 23-4 in dual meets.

The Lady Warriors shared the Merrimack Valley conference dual meet championship with Dracut and Chelmsford when both were sophomores (8-1 record), and this year

Out in style

KK and Tania Terrific went out in style as Andover won the MVC title outright, finished undefeated (9-0) in duals, won the League Meet as well, placed third in the Eastern Mass. North Sectionals and third in the All-State Meet.

The big reason the team was 6-3 during Kasie and Tania's junior year was both suffered ankle injuries and missed approximately half the season. Ms. Kearins injured while at an off campus practice and Ms. Pierce while doing her floor exercise routine against Phillips Academy.

Both stayed healthy and were models of consistency all winter.

For example, Kasie was seeded in all four events in the State Meet after averaging 8.7 in floor, 8.65 on bars, 8.6 on beam and 8.3 in vaulting. Her scores in the State final were 8.55 floor and 8.35 in each of the other three events for a 33.60 all-around.

In the League Meet she was 8.65 bars, 8.55 floor, 8.35 beam and 8.15 vault.

Kasie also scored her first 34 all-around this season.

Tania was seeded on bars (8.59), beam (8.53) and vault (8.43) for States, and she scored 8.45 in vaulting, 8.35 on bars and 8.0 on beam.

Although their top averages were in floor and on bars, both girls named beam as their favorite event and expressed almost identical sentiments about this difficult piece of apparatus.

"I love beam when I don't fall off," laughed Kasie. "I like the challenge, and if you stick it the feeling is so good after you get off."

"Beam is the toughest, but when you stick beam there is more satisfaction," echoed Tania.

At last week's team banquet at the China Blossom, Kasie was named the team's Most Valuable Gymnast and was selected as an All-Scholastic.

Tania earned the Most Improved Gymnast award and was chosen to receive a special Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association plaque presented at an AHS assembly yesterday.

Both were Merrimack Valley Conference All-Star selections.

Tania Pierce is sidelined

Tania Pierce has experienced back pains the past two weeks and was scheduled to have a bone scan examination taken this week.

Tania hopes the problem can be quickly diagnosed and remedied so that she will not have to interrupt her YMCA gymnastics competition or stop running track for Andover High this spring.

"I love beam when I don't fall off," says Kasie Kearins. Here, she competes at the 1992 North Sectional Championships. Kasie was named Most Valuable Gymnast at the team banquet last week, as well as being selected as an All-Scholastic.

"Beam is the toughest, but when you stick beam there is more satisfaction," says Tania Pierce. She earned the Most Improved Gymnast award this year and was chosen to receive a special Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association Plaque.

Tania will attend Penn State, probably to major in business, and "may join the team as a vaulter."

Kasie has been accepted at Syracuse, but has always dreamed of going to Boston College or the University of New Hampshire to which she also applied but has yet to hear from. She wants to major in sports communications.

"Right now gymnastics is my favorite sport, but it's hard to stay in shape for," noted KK. "It kills your body."

Both Tania and Kasie are also divers on the swim team in the fall, and both are currently running track. Kasie is a hurdler and triple jumper, Tania a long jumper and triple jumper.

While gymnastics is a question mark, both have expressed a desire to continue their diving in college.

"If they preferred to do gymnastics in college, I think both Kasie and Tania would do well at a smaller school. Like Michelle Black (former AHS standout now starring at Ithaca College). At Penn State or UNH it would be much more difficult for them," offered Coach Curtis.

For alphabetical reasons we'll start with Kasie.

More about Kasie

Kasie, who turns 18 in two months (May 24), drives a cream colored Jeep and dates one of the school's top male athletes (Jason McCue).

She is 5'4" and 110 pounds, with brown eyes, brown hair and a dynamite smile.

She is the second oldest of Bill and Pam Kearins' four children.

Sister Mia, 20, was also a gymnast-diver-hurdler at Andover High. She now attends UMass-Amherst.

Brother Billy, 13, does just about everything but gymnastics. He's into hockey, baseball, basketball and soccer.

Sister Kristin, 9, is a future gymnastic giant.

The family dog is a puppy named Reilly, christened by brother Billy. "I think he named it after that hockey player (Terry) O'Reilly."

She was born in Melrose but has lived in Andover since she was nine years old.

Kasie likes all kinds of music, but her favorite singers are Billy Joel and James Taylor. She listens to 94.5 WZOU.

Her favorite movie is the Anthony Michael Hall-Molly Ringwald classic "16 Candles."

KK is an honor roll student, co-captain in gymnastics and swimming, student government vice-president, a member of S.A.D.D. (Students Against Drunk Driving) and of the Captains Council.

The latter organization is a group of athletic team captains who initiate projects such as collecting and distributing gifts to the needy during the holidays. They are currently raising money to help burn victim John Benson in his recuperation.

She also likes to snow ski, water ski and play golf.

"We used to have a cottage in North Conway, and I mostly just golf because the course is right there."

Her closest friend is teammate Sarah Faraci.

Superstitions

Kasie has a few superstitions.

"I have an angel pin that Sarah gave me. I always wear it inside my shorts during track season. In gymnastics I have a little troll figure for good luck. I usually put it on the scorer's table during meets."

KK also has a special song.

"Anne Milroe and I both love 'One Moment In Time,' and she put it on in the background while I was performing against North Andover. I got my best score ever on the beam. I couldn't use it for floor exercise because I can't find a copy of the music without the words."

Kasie's mom goes to every meet in each of her daughter's three sports, just as she attended all of Mia's events and is there for all Billy's games and Kristin's meets.

Her dad is president of Systems Management Corp. and does a lot of traveling. "But he's behind me all the way. We videotape the meets he can't attend, and he watches those on the weekend. When he's home he's always there," explained KK.

Kasie started gymnastics at the age of five when her dad enrolled her at the Montvale Club in Woburn.

"Mia was doing it and I was always small and energetic," said KK. "It was easy for me and I loved it right from the start."

She was nine when she joined the Merrimack Valley Gymnastics Club, then located in North Andover and now in Methuen. She's been there for eight years, and still goes there twice a year.

"I really got serious about gymnastics when I was 13 or 14 years old. Our Merrimack Valley coach (Sheila Menrique) took the whole team to see a sports psychologist (Allen Goldberg) in Boston. He talked about mental awareness and how important it is.

The lesson stuck.

"I just finished a 20-page term paper on mental awareness in athletics for my Dominant Ideas class. I think 90 percent of gym-

Former Andover High three-sport captain Hugh Maginnis cut quite a niche for himself the past four years as a member of the Villanova University hockey team.

Maginnis will graduate in May as Villanova's all-time leading scorer, and the Wildcats' sniper also led the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) South Division in scoring for the recently completed 1991-92 season.

Villanova, located in a small Philadelphia suburb bearing the same name, is much better known for its men's basketball team than for its hockey prowess.

In fact, 'Cats hockey players were required to get up at approximately 4:30 a.m. for 5:45 a.m. practices at a "home" rink located six miles from the campus in Haverstown. Many times a full day of classes followed, making it easy to see why players were mentally and physically exhausted at the end of most days.

Games often started at 11 a.m. on Sunday morning, and with such sacrifices necessary it's easy to see how much the Villanova hockey players loved their sport.

Maginnis, who graduated from AHS in 1988 after captaining the hockey, golf and tennis teams, chose Villanova more for its academic rather than athletic opportunities.

However, the finance major was able to fit hockey's unconventional schedule into his curriculum and he picked up right where he left off in high school.

Maginnis, who blossomed as a player his senior year at Andover, earned Merrimack Valley Conference All-Star honors in 1987-88 and was also a top scorer for the Golden Warriors.

He holds the AHS record for assists in a single season (26), and his record for points in a season (18-26-44) was eclipsed by Sean Darwin (21-24-45) last year. Hugh is the seventh leading all-time scorer at Andover (23-32-55), and ranks fifth in goals for a single season (18), sixth in career goals (23) and tied for seventh in career assists (32).

He is also one third of the highest scoring (single season) line in Andover High history, combining with Matt Pothier and Rob Stoltz for 53 goals, 60 assists and 113 points in 1987-88.

At Villanova center-ice man Maginnis, operating in near-anonymity, led the team in scoring as a freshman (26-18-44), junior (28-24-52) and senior (35-40-75). He also had 24-36-60 points as a sophomore and finished with 231 career points on 113 goals and 118 assists.

Two-time team MVP Maginnis was honored for his accomplishments before a game with Scranton last month, and was named "Athlete of the Week" by the school newspaper, The Villanovan, at approximately the same time.

Maginnis has discussed with first-year Coach Pat Ferrill the possibility of continuing his hockey career in Europe. Hugh plays the European style of hockey which emphasizes skating and passing. He was rarely penalized in high school or college.

"I think he had one tripping penalty his senior year at Andover, and that was a mistake," said his father Hugh.

"Maginnis certainly has the ability to play in Europe," said Coach Ferrill in a recent article written for the school paper by Nova assistant sports information director Mike Blinn. "It's hard for a Division 3 player to get a shot over there, but given the opportunity I know he'll do well. He's a quiet kid, but a real leader. He went out and led by example every day."

Maginnis, recipient of a Villanova Administrative Award recognizing his achievements, is the youngest of Hugh and Marge (Retelle) Maginnis' four children. The parents reside at 16 Rennie Drive.

His younger sister Maureen, a freshman at Northern Essex Community College, was a top volleyball player and sprinter, triple jumper and co-captain of the Andover High girls' track team last year.

Older brothers are John, 28, and Tom, 26, the latter a rock 'n roll drummer with the band "Buffalo Tom" which is currently touring Europe and is the No. 1 group in Holland.

Hugh Maginnis is also a cousin of current Andover physical education director nastics is mental and the other 10 percent is physical. If you have confidence in your ability you can do well in just about anything," said Ms. Kearins.

Kasie did not compete for Andover High as a freshman because her Merrimack Valley coach told the girls to choose between the two teams.

"By the time I was a sophomore she had let up a little because three of us were thinking of leaving."

The diving started when she was 10, during her second summer in Andover.

"Indian Ridge Country Club is practically in our backyard, so I used to go there a lot. The coach (J.B. Burgess) knew Mia and I were gymnasts so he asked us to do a couple of dives."

That was all Burgess, then a student at Governor Dummer and now a senior at Boston College, needed to see. KK has been on the Indian Ridge team for seven years, three of them as the Most Valuable Diver award-winner, and in June she will spend her second summer as a lifeguard and diving teacher at the club.

She runs track to stay in shape and because she enjoys it.

"My goal this year is to get down to three steps between hurdles. It may not sound like much but it's important to me."

Jason should be able to help her with that.

Memorable moments

Kasie's most memorable athletic moment at Andover High came two years ago when the Lady Warriors beat seemingly-invincible Dracut in a dual meet.

"It was their first loss in eight years. They had won something like 58 straight meets. And we did it at home. It was great."

Another high moment actually started with a low moment during the swim season last fall.

"I was beginning to get a bad attitude," she explained. "I was afraid to try new dives and I was getting fed up with myself. I was seeded third in the MVC Meet and feeling a lot of pressure. But then I finished third in a group of about 35 divers."

Kasie was also psyched when she found herself seeded in the all-around competition for the Sectional Gymnastics Meet.

"This year I tried to be less serious and have a better time. Marcie (Lutsch) came on the team and she was better than everyone. At the beginning that was hard for me, but after two weeks I was able to accept it."

More about Tania

Tania will still be 17 when she leaves for Penn State in the fall. Her 18th birthday is September 6.

She's 5'4" and 123 pounds, with hazel-green eyes, black hair and an equally great smile.

Tania is the eldest of Hal and Faye Pierce's three children.

Brother Justin, 16, is a sophomore at Andover High and a member of the boys' gymnastics team.

Sister Viki, 12, plays soccer, basketball and softball.

Both parents have been very supportive. Tania is an honor roll student, a member of the Bread and Roses community service group at school, and vice-president of the Andover-North Andover YMCA Youth Leaders Club.

Her favorite music is rap, her favorite groups are Public Enemy and Naughty By Nature, and her favorite movie starred Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke. "Mary Poppins" may have been made before she was born.

Superstitions

Her superstitions revolve around a blue elastic and a silver barrette.

"I wear the same elastic and barrette for every meet. I almost lost the barrette during one swim meet. It fell to the bottom of the pool and I made Sarah (Paraci) go in and try to find it. I couldn't because the chlorine really affects my eyes. But Sarah is like a fish. She found it."

Tania was born in Webster, New York (near Rochester) and her family moved to Andover when she was 11.

Her mother was the girls' gymnastics coach at Webster High. In fact, Mrs. Pierce almost took the Andover High job Tania's freshman year before former Coach Nancy Winitzer and Julie Curtis were enlisted.

"I used to go with her to practices when I was four or five. My mom also started teaching at the 'Y' six years ago, and I've been taking classes and competing there since I was 11."

Tania left briefly to try the Palaestra Gymnastics Academy, then in Andover and now in North Andover, but returned to the 'Y' after one year.

She has competed nationally for five years with the YMCA team, and also teaches the Tumblebugs four- and five-year-olds and another group of youngsters in grades 1-8.

Andover High teammates Amanda Schaae and Stacy Thresher have also joined Tania on the YMCA team this spring.

Last year was her best in the YMCA Nationals, as Tania competed all-around and placed third on both the uneven bars and in vaulting at San Diego, California.

There are developmental and elite divisions, numbered 1-10, and Tania competes in the former.

She has also been to Florida twice for the Nationals, placing third one year in vaulting, and she was eighth in vaulting when the event was held in Boston.

Last weekend Tania won the Eastern Mass. League all-around championship with a 33.70 score. She was first in vaulting and beam and registered a personal career-best 9.1 on beam.

Her fifth trip to the Nationals is scheduled for late June, the 1992 meet ticketed for Toledo, Ohio.

"I think my chances are good. My scores are higher than last year in all four events."

Tania is also exploring the possibility of teaching at the YMCA near Penn State.

"YMCA has a rule if you compete in college gymnastics you can't compete for the 'Y.' If I decide not to vault at Penn State I'll probably continue with the sport at the 'Y.'"

Her introduction to diving came last summer, in much the same way Kasie was "discovered" at Indian Ridge.

"The coach at the 'Y' (Tom Graham) needed a diver, knew I was a gymnast, and put me on the team after one practice dive. Last fall was my first time on the high school team."

Memorable moments

Tania Terrific has two biggest AHS gymnastic moments.

"Going to the States this year was memorable because it was the first time for the Andover girls since 1969-70. That was great for the team. Personally it was beating Tammy Noel (1991 State Individual champ from Dracut High) in vaulting and on beam two years ago."

Tania agrees with Kasie that gymnastic success is about 90 percent mental.

"If you're not confident and don't think you can do a move, you probably won't. Whenever you want to try something new you just have to go for it."

"It's not really a team sport because you're out there alone. But teammates can help one another by giving tips. You can learn a lot by watching other gymnasts. You couldn't do that just competing by yourself," explained Tania.

Tania had little trouble adjusting to the presence of freshman sensation Marcie Lutsch.

"We've been good friends for five years. Her mother worked at the 'Y' and Marcie came there with her. I know she's better. She's helped me a lot."

Sparks

Both girls admit it has not been all sweetness and light between them past three years.

They respect each other's talents but are also driven by their own competitive juices.

It's not uncommon among superior athletes. The same relationship exists between Dracut superstars Tammy Noel and Paula Cronk.

Kasie and Tania were not communicating properly during the swim season, so diving Coach Mary Wermers came up with the perfect solution.

"She locked us in a room alone and told us to talk it out," reported Kasie.

"And that's all we did, just talk," assured Tania.

"I thought things went pretty well during the gymnastics season," said Coach Curtis.

Indeed they did, and Andover High will miss these two talented athletes.

KK and Tania Terrific.

Dick Bourdelais, himself a former star football and track (high jump) athlete at Andover High.

The big guy at the bottom of the mid-court pileup on national television last Saturday night was none other than former Andover resident Matt Geiger, 7-foot starting center for the Georgia Tech basketball team.

Matthew Allen Geiger had a fun weekend, making his presence felt in the Yellow Jackets' 65-60 NCAA Tournament Midwest Regional first round victory over Houston and subsequent heart stopping last-second 79-78 upset of the University of Southern California at The Bradley Center in Milwaukee.

Geiger contributed two big baskets for Georgia Tech (23-11 record) during a pivotal 11-0 run that turned the Houston game around in the waning minutes.

Matt, one of four Yellow Jacket players in double figures, hit 5-of-10 floor shots for 10 points prior to fouling out.

In Midwest No. 7 seed Georgia Tech's stunner over No. 2 seed USC, Geiger inbounded the ball with a perfect bullet pass to freshman hero Jgmes Forrest on the winning play. Forrest then whirled and swished an off-balance, 25-foot three-pointer as the buzzer sounded.

Tech fans mobbed the court and Geiger was last seen at the bottom of the victory pile.

In that Round-of-32 game, played before 18,000 fans, Geiger was one of five Yellow Jackets who did all the scoring as he hit 6-of-8 from the floor for 12 points.

Geiger, a resident of Clearwater, Florida for the past decade, was born in Tewksbury but spent several years in Andover where he and twin brother Mark played for the West Parish entry in the Andover Church Basketball League.

After earning All-American honors at Countryside High School in Clearwater, where his team went 27-6 his senior year, Matt started his collegiate hoop career at Auburn before transferring after two years when Coach Sonny Smith left the Alabama school for VMI.

Now a fifth-year senior, Geiger also played in the prestigious NC2A tourney as a freshman at Auburn (1988). That year Matt, filling in for 'Tigers' injured starting pivotman Jeff Moore, started 13 games and had a memorable 22-point performance against Tennessee and a key part in an upset over the No. 1 team in the country at the time, Kentucky.

His parents and biggest fans, Dick and Kay Geiger, resided on Wabanaki Way and were well-known in area real estate circles (Cape-Re).

The 22-year-old Geiger, who returned to the area to attend a pair of Boston Celtics summer camps at Red Auerbach's invitation, is a potential pro prospect.

Matt can be seen again tomorrow on either ESPN Cable-TV or Channel 7 as the Yellow Jackets face Memphis State in the Sweet Sixteen round of the tournament.

Two more victories and Georgia Tech will be in the Final Four.

Sean Ryan, who has garnered just about every trophy, plaque and accolade available during the 1991-92 high school basketball season, this Saturday night will accept the Edward Middleton Award from IAABO (International Association of Approved Basketball Officials) Board 130.

The honor is bestowed upon a North Shore area player who "exhibits outstanding sportsmanship, leadership and basketball ability."

Sean definitely qualifies on all counts.

His parents and younger brother Kevin will be on hand when Sean receives this latest award during the annual Board 130 dinner at the Chase House on Pickering Wharf in Salem on Saturday.

He is the second Andover resident to win the prestigious IAABO award, joining former AHS center Kip Jones (son of Boston Celtics' legend K.C. Jones) who was honored in 1981.

Last weekend was a very busy one for young Mr. Ryan.

Saturday and Sunday he attended the "Top 100 Clinic" at Boston College, an elite event for the top 100 high school hoop players from the six New England states and New York.

He also tried out and was selected for the North All-Star team which will play the last of four games in the annual Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association "Top 80 Classic" scheduled for Sunday, April 12 at Merrimack College.

Sean is one of 10 players on the North squad, which will face the South All-Stars in the 2:30 p.m. game.

Sean and his father, Charlie, also snagged two tickets for the NCAA Eastern Regionals at the Worcester Centrum last Saturday.

Later that same day Sean left the Centrum and participated in the annual Red Hoffman Memorial All-Star Game, named for the former Lynn Item sportswriter who spent much of his newspaper career reporting on local high school athletics.

Ryan, who scored 502 points this season and just under 1,000 for his Andover High career, netted 14 in this contest which saw his Public School Stars beaten 127-114 by the Catholic All-Stars at the Salem High Field House. He was the second leading scorer for the Publics.

Sean, the only four-year varsity player in AHS hoop history and the 1991-92 Merrimack Valley Conference Large School Division MVP, also began his AAU basketball season with the New Bedford-based Buddies team which was playing in a tournament in Taunton.

And, finally, Ryan learned that he has been selected for both Boston newspapers' All-Scholastic teams which will be published within the next two weeks.

Definitely a weekend to remember.

Sean will attend Division 1 Monmouth College on a four-year scholarship.

Mike Lane, a junior outfielder for the University of Massachusetts-Lowell baseball team, had a sizzling .467 batting average during the Chiefs' recently completed eight-game swing through Florida.

A former Central Catholic three-sport standout (football-wrestling-baseball), the stocky 5'11", 202-pound Lane transferred to UMass-Lowell from Florida Southern two years ago.

Mike, playing right field and alternating between the cleanup and fifth spot in the batting order for the Chiefs, hit .611 with seven RBI over the first five Florida games before "cooling off."

Among his notable performances in the Sunshine State were a 3-for-4 day in a 10-9 loss to St. Leo's, a two hit, three-RBI effort in an 18-10 defeat to University of Wisconsin-Stout, and a trip-ending 2-for-4 with two runs scored and one RBI in an 11-3 UML romp over Division 1 Toledo.

As a sophomore last spring returning letterman Lane split the leftfield job, seeing action in 21 games and hitting .233 (10-for-43) with two home runs, 14 runs scored and nine RBI after a slow start.

The Chiefs, whose final victory in Florida was veteran Coach Jim Stone's 450th career win, were 4-4 overall down south. Weather permitting they opened the northern portion of their schedule yesterday at Stonehill.

Lane can be seen locally next Thursday afternoon, April 2, when UMass-Lowell plays at Merrimack College.

Brothers Bill and Chris were also standout football and baseball players at Central Catholic, both playing quarterback on the gridiron and catcher on the baseball diamond.

Bill went to Springfield College where knee injuries cut short his athletic career. Chris is currently at Cornell and a member of the Big Red football team.

"Trash" Dept: The word is that Andover High hockey player Bill Owens, who led the Golden Warriors tournament qualifier in scoring this past season, didn't break his ankle in the final game against Methuen.

He supposedly sustained the original hairline fracture taking out the trash (must have been some trip).

The injury was then aggravated in the hockey game.

Oops Dept: In the article last week about pre-season practices for Andover High spring sports teams, it was incorrectly noted under the outdoor track section that Jon Usher was a returning sprinter.

Coach Dick Collins probably wishes that was true, but in actuality Jon graduated last spring.

We regret the error.

Amy Heseltine and Janetta Santalo were named co-MVPs for the girls, while Nate Mullett captured the MVP award for the boys, highlighting the annual Andover High ski team banquet last week at the Rolling Green Host Hotel.

This year marked the first time the event was "formal," and the evening included a slide show and brief remarks by Andover High principal Tim Thomas and Head Coach Dick Stevens.

Several other awards were presented to top performers on each squad.

Coaches Awards went to Melissa Letch and Ted Ratyna, and Most Improved Skier trophies to Kirstin Nowell and Barret Elliot.

Emily Winters and Christine Durant were girls' co-Rookies-of-the-

Merrimack College to do Gypsy

A student drama group at Merrimack College in North Andover will present Gypsy April 3-5 and 9-11 at 8 p.m. at the church auditorium at the college.

Tom Kirkman of Lawrence is the director. He has also directed Little Shop of Horrors at the college, as well as Godspell and Mack and Mable. Jim Girgenti of Tewksbury is the choreographer and John Merenda of Andover is assistant to the technical director. Mr. Merenda also plays the part of Mr. Goldstone in Gypsy.

Tickets are $8 general admission and $7 for students, faculty, staff and senior citizens. However, tickets purchased by April 3 from the student activities office at Merrimack College are $5.

Benefit is for John Benson

West Parish Church members and Andover High School students will serve a ham and bean supper Saturday, April 4, to benefit burn victim John Benson. It will begin at 4 p.m. with continuous serving until 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door and the public is welcome.

Mr. Benson, 19, of 5 Lowell St., a 1991 AHS graduate, is in fair condition at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester. He was burned on Jan. 15 when his car went off the road and caught fire.

He may be moved to a rehabilitation hospital next month, according to Susan Benson, his mother. A fund has been set up by West Parish members for the Benson family at Andover Bank.

Pat Chalfin, of 7 Deerfield Way, sent the Townsmen a note last week saying she and her husband, Barry, donated blood in Mr. Benson's name. "We do not know John or his family, but we have been following his progress in the Townsmen. Being the parents of two teen-agers, we know what the Benson family must be going through," Ms. Chalfin wrote.

Radon Diagnostic Services

Pictured above are radon gas monitors sampling air in a basement to both measure radon gas concentrations and detect its entry paths. Richard Rammacher, president of Radon Diagnostic Services, a division of Biosources, Ltd., is dedicated to giving fast and accurate measurements of radon levels in homes or businesses. As an EPA approved laboratory, he performs extensive testing for major relocation companies. Dick is also an EPA approved radon contractor, permitting him to design and install cost effective radon remediation systems that permanently reduce radon concentrations to safe levels.

Radon Diagnostic Services uses state-of-the-art instrumentation which can give immediate on-site results.

Tests of three or four locations within a home can be completed within 90 minutes. Long-term test devices, often left on the premises, continue to measure radon levels for as long as a year. In the case of real estate transactions, continuous radon monitoring for at least 48 hours is strongly recommended. This procedure is selected because it is accurate, tamper resistant and results are immediately available. A comprehensive, confidential written report is prepared for the customer.

All homes with high radon concentrations can be permanently reduced to safe levels. This usually requires a competent and experienced mitigation contractor, such as Dick Rammacher, who can repair the homes with guaranteed results. Dick has successfully mitigated hundreds of homes. In 1991 alone, more than 25 Andover homes were remediated with radon reductions exceeding 90 percent.

The E.P.A., Surgeon General, Massachusetts Department of Health and American Lung Association, recommend that all dwellings be tested for elevated levels of radon gas. An E.P.A. survey has shown that more than one third of Merrimack Valley homes have dangerously high levels of this radioactive gas. Radon Diagnostic Services can identify and repair these homes.

Dick is available to answer any questions concerning radon, its detection and reduction. For free consultation, call Dick Rammacher at (508) 794-3354.

the offensive hero of last June's State Division 1 championship final win over Milford, driving home the tying runs and scoring the clincher in the dramatic 3-2 triumph.

Murray starts his second and final season at Providence after transferring from UMass-Amherst following his sophomore year.

Tom, who played third base last spring and will shift to right field this year, broke into the Friars' lineup with a bang last year by going 3-for-5 with six RBI against George Washington and then 4-for-6 with six RBI against Quinnipiac.

He was having an outstanding season until breaking his collarbone in a homeplate collision against Pitt last April 7.

He finished at .307 with four homers, five doubles, two triples, 31 hits, 27 runs scored, a .515 slugging percentage and 27 RBI in 27 games.

Murray put together a 14-game hitting streak between March 14 and April 3.

Disenchanted at UMass, Tom hit .222 with 18 hits and nine RBI as a freshman.

He was a MVC All Conference choice in 1988 at Andover High.

Tom is the son of Jim and Ellen Bedford, 10 Stevens Circle. He has two younger brothers, Todd, 16, a sophomore at AHS, and Tyler, 4.

Joe is the son of Joe and Jane Iarrobino, 14 Cricket Circle. He has a younger brother Jon, 16, a sophomore varsity tennis player at AHS and an older sister, JoAnne.

Cedardale Athletic Club in Haverhill will host a 40 and over basketball tournament April 3-4.

All players must turn 40 by Dec. 31.

Golden Warrior symbol remains were insulting native people, he told the Townsmen in an interview at the time.

"I wanted people to be more aware that when they dress up and wear war paint, it is a mockery of native people, historically incorrect and insulting," Mr. Meyers said last fall.

According to Principal Thomas, efforts were made at that time to bring more cultural and ethnic awareness to the school that would foster more understanding and less intolerance.

Mr. Radak believes the action taken last fall was not enough. He said it didn't go far enough to discourage the behavior. He also said the initiatives taken by the administration are not taken seriously enough by the student body and the student government representatives.

Mr. Radak, said he became aware that students' actions, such as dressing in face paint and "whooping and war chanting" at school and sporting events, might be considered offensive to American Indians. Following publicity when Atlanta Braves baseball fans initiated the "tomahawk" chop at the 1991 World Series last summer. Then the subject came up again this fall when Mr. Meyers addressed the school.

My proposal was to change the mascot and make an apology to the community. I thought it was common courtesy. If we were saying that what we were doing was wrong, we should be making amends for it," Mr. Radak said.

Many of the students and a majority of the teachers Mr. Radak said he spoke with about his proposal said they were in favor of disbanding the Golden Warrior as the school's symbol.

But when it came to a vote, student representatives cast their vote on the basis of their homeroom's majority opinion. Senior Laura Wilson represents homeroom 251. She said she polled her homeroom and found out the majority weren't in favor of the proposal.

'The general feeling in my homeroom was that 'this is the way it has been for a so long, why change it now.'

"The general feeling in my homeroom was that 'this is the way it has been for a so long, why change it now,'" she said.

Ms. Wilson said some students even expressed anger that the school would consider changing the mascot. Even though some students realized certain actions in displaying school spirit that are centered around the Golden Warrior may be considered insensitive to American Indians, they didn't want to change the warrior as the symbol of school spirit, Ms. Wilson said.

"One person suggested an amendment to the proposal that would still provide for an apology, and keep the mascot," she said.

Mr. Radak rejected the amendment. He said it would be "hypocritical" to apologize and then continue with same behavior. Although Mr. Radak said he was disappointed with the final vote, he was not surprised with the outcome.

"I didn't expect anyone to be really interested in the issue. A lot of teachers supported it, which I thought was good," he said.

Police honored

Detective David R. Grant and Sgt. James Hashem were each chosen by their fellow workers as the police department's employee of the month for January and February respectively.

Detective Grant, 51, was hired as a patrolman in February, 1967 after he completed basic training at the Northern Middlesex Police Academy. His extensive in-service training has included seminars and certification courses in homicide, crime scene and criminal investigation.

He has been a detective for the last eight years and currently works a split shift, days and evenings.

Sgt. Hashem, 25, was hired as a patrolman in September of 1986.

He was so young, he couldn't transport confiscated beer in his cruiser for the first nine months on the force, according to Lt. Phillip Froburg.

He was made sergeant in 1990 and is currently the patrol supervisor on the late night, 12:30-8:30 a.m., shift.

Sgt. Hashem graduated from the Topsfield Police Academy in 1988 with a high academic average. He has an associates degree in Criminal Justice from Northern Essex Community College and his in-service training included a command training program at Babson College in 1990.

Employees get a parking space out in front of the station for the month and a pen and pencil set bearing the town seal.
